Huge Ore Strike Estimate Doubled

Dead Husband Inside Self-Serve Elevator $25 Million Ontario Mine Plan

MRS. SIMPSON
... doors opened

NEW YORK (AP)—Only minutes after Mrs. Selma Simpson saw her husband precede her into their apartment building, the self-service elevator returned to the lobby with his slain body.

The victim of the macabre murder Wednesday night was Leonard Simpson, 63, a lawyer.

He was slain by a single bullet that passed through his heart, Dr. William J. Brady, assistant medical examiner, reported after conducting an autopsy.

Police earlier had expressed belief he was stabbed, possibly with an ice pick.

Police put out an alarm for a man Mrs. Simpson and others saw leaving the building.

Police said the victim's wallet was empty of bills, although Simpson's younger son, Victor, 23, told police his father usually carried about $50 in bills.

As the elevator doors opened, disclosing his body, face down, Mrs. Simpson screamed and said: "Oh my God. Wait a minute. It looks like my husband."

Just before the elevator doors opened, Mrs. Simpson and two men who also were waiting for the elevator: noticed a tall, gaunt Negro with a moustache, who came down the stairs, waved to them in a friendly way and left the building.

NEW YORK (AP)—Texas Gulf Sulphur said today that its ore discovery at Timmins, Ont., is apparently twice as big as at first believed and also richer.

Claude O. Stephens, president, said 26 drill holes and 17 assay tests indicate a body 200 to 500 feet wide, 1,800 feet long and possibly 1,400 or more feet deep.

The dimensions suggest a reserve of about 55,000,000 tons containing 1.33 per cent copper, 7.08 per cent zinc and 4.85 ounces of silver to the ton.

Earlier estimates put the reserve at 300-400 feet wide and 800 feet long with some 25,000,000 tons of ore, including .73 per cent copper, 12 per cent zinc and 1.31 ounces of silver.

Trading in the company's stock, which had shot from a range of about 28 to about twice that in the weeks after its discovery, was halted on the New York Stock Exchange at mid-day.

It reopened at 3 1/4, up 1/4. The stock showed a net loss of about two at the close.

Trading in Curtis Publishing Company, which owns property in the area, also was held up after the announcement. It was selling at 13 1/2, up 1, at the time.

DESCRIBES PLANS

Stephens told directors the company plans to start immediately clearing roads for a facility to mine and process 6,000 tons of ore a day. This will require a capital investment of about $25,000,000, he said.

Concentrates from the pits probably will be sold to outside smelters at first, but the company is considering building its own smelters, he said.

"A preliminary testing indicates that ore may be separated into its various metal components by a process of crushing, grinding and flotation to produce saleable concentrates," he said.

"As previously announced, the ore body begins at the relatively shallow depth of about 20 feet, which will permit open-pit mining for some years.

"Twenty-six drill holes of varying depth have been completed in the ore body. Assays have been completed on 17 holes. These drill holes (at present) indicate an ore body roughly 200 to 500 feet in width and to date 1,800 feet in length."

Parley Opens On Malaysia

TOKYO (UPI)—The long-awaited foreign ministers' meeting on Malaysia opened in Tokyo today to work out an agenda for a summit conference among the heads of Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines.

Soviet Modifies Arms Plan

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union forecast a move today to meet the American position on a proposed "bonfire" of nuclear bomber planes.

Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the 17-country disarmament conference a forthcoming new Kremlin plan will modify the Jan. 28 Soviet proposal calling for total destruction of all bombing planes.

The January proposal was rejected by the United States as impractical and unacceptable to the West. An American counter-plan March 19 called for destruction of 480 American B-4s, matched by the destruction of 480 Soviet TU-16s over a two-year period. The Russians rejected the counterproposal.

Zorin hinted his new proposal will take into account the American objections to scrapping all bombers.

"The Soviet delegation will present its views on how and in what order we think it most appropriate, taking into account opinions advanced by other delegations, to carry out the elimination of bomber aircraft," he said. "At present we would like only to state that the Soviet Union is going to occupy a flexible position in this matter."

TALK PRIVATELY

American officials were intrigued by Zorin's use of the word flexible. Immediately after the morning conference session, U.S. disarmament negotiator William C. Foster took Zorin aside in an unscheduled private talk lasting nearly an hour.

Presumably, Foster sought to draw out Zorin on what the Soviet Union has in mind on how and in what order bomber planes should be destroyed.

Significantly, the bomber bonfire was not directly mentioned in an agreement on the conference agenda reached between Foster and Zorin and announced earlier today. This indicated the United States and the Soviet Union may be on the verge of genuine bilateral negotiations on the bonfire and therefore did not wish the matter to be raised in the unwieldy 17-nation group at this time.

The agenda agreement reached by Foster and Zorin did not remove or reduce fundamental deadlocks on the items mentioned for discussion. But it was the first formal agreement on an agenda reached in the two-year conference and should help brighten the atmosphere of the talks.

The U.S. said today it is prepared to accept a complete verified "cut-off" in the production of fissionable materials for use in nuclear weapons.

Foster told the conference the U.S. government made this offer in order to slow down the arms race.

Police Batter Negroes in Pool

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—A near-riot broke out and many demonstrators were arrested in a new flare-up just as this troubled city appeared to be reaching a settlement of its racial troubles.

The near-riot broke out when six Negro men and women jumped into a pool in which whites were swimming at the Monson Motor Lodge.

Whites yelled to the Negroes to get out and the motel manager, Bill Brock, poured two gallons of muriatic acid in the pool, sloshing it at the Negroes.

A policeman leaped into the pool, grabbed one Negro around the neck and they began fighting. Then club-wielding officers surrounded the pool, hitting at the Negroes in the water.

UN SCORES SOUTH AFRICA

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United Nations security council today voted a new condemnation of South Africa's apartheid policies and ordered a study of possible punitive measures.

A compromise resolution, sponsored by Norway and Bolivia, was approved 8 to 0 with France, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia abstaining.

"Arrest them!" cried some of about 100 whites watching the struggle. "Get the dogs!"

Finally the Negroes climbed out of the water, some bruised by clubbing on backs, arms and shoulders and were taken to jail.

A short time earlier, about 50 persons, including a group of rabbis, were arrested during an attempt to get service in the lodge restaurant.

The rabbis from several states joined Negroes for a march Wednesday night through a white residential section of St. Augustine. It was something new in the way of racial demonstrations in the oldest city in the United States.

"If they can come through our neighborhood we can go through theirs," Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy of Atlanta, Ga., told a church meeting.

This was a reference to two night marches through a Negro section last week by white segregationists. Negroes have staged their protest marches in the downtown area.

The new night-time demonstration was held without incident. Earlier, a dozen Negroes were taken into custody during sit-in attempts, pushing the total to more than 200.

In Washington, there was every indication the Senate would pass the historic civil rights bill by the end of the week.

BROKEN DIKE FORCES THREE FAMILIES OUT

HARRISON MILLS (CP)—Flood waters from the Harrison River poured through a 40-foot breach in a municipal dike and forced three families to evacuate at this farming community.

Neighbors helped the three families move about 100 head of cattle to safety.

Another 20 families living on the south side of the Loughed Highway and are being threatened by the flood and have made ready to evacuate at a moment's notice. Crews were sandbagging a road in the area in an attempt to protect other threatened farmland.

At Mission City meanwhile the Fraser River dropped several inches overnight.

LAW PROTESTED

MDs to Fight Birth Control Restrictions?

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian Medical Association is expected to be asked shortly to add its powerful voice to a swelling chorus of protest against Canada's restrictive law on birth control.

Demand for the repeal of the widely violated law have been voiced during recent weeks in Parliament and in the churches, by welfare organizations and women's groups.

The governing general council of the CMA at its annual meeting in Vancouver June 22-26 will consider "certain recommendations about changes in the birth control law," says the chairman of the CMA's maternal welfare committee, Dr. Louis J. Harris.

Dr. Harris, prominent Toronto obstetrician, would give no details of his committee's recommendations in advance of their presentation to the CMA council. However, his personal stand, he said, is for repeal of the law against dissemination of information about birth control.

Should organized medicine in Canada decide for the first time to advocate formally a change in the law, it would lend weight to demands for the repeal of the Criminal Code's sanction against the sale or advertisement of birth control methods or instruction in them.

URGENT CHANGE

Within a few weeks at the end of May and early in June the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, two Ontario conferences of the United Church, the Toronto diocese of the Anglican Church and the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec called for a change in the law.

"Under present law, every minister who gives advice on family planning is breaking the law," Rev. A. J. Cowland told the Presbyterian assembly.

Cyprus Fight Erupts Again

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—Heavy fighting broke out again today between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots in the northeastern part of this embattled Mediterranean island, the United Nations Command said.

A UN spokesman said a church and a school in the Greek-Cypriot village of Mophileri were set afire by mortar shells.

Automatic weapons, mortars and grenades were used in the fighting in the area which has been the scene of sharp clashes since last Monday.

There were no reports available on casualties in the renewed fighting, which came on the day when the UN Security Council in New York was debating a plan to extend for three months the UN peace-keeping force on the island.

At least one Greek-Cypriot was killed and one wounded in the earlier fighting in the area of today's clash. The UN reported Wednesday that one Turkish-Cypriot was killed in shooting near the Turkish-Cypriot village of Yerovassa, west of Limassol. Another unconfirmed UN report said a second Turkish-Cypriot was killed in the southwest Turkish-Cypriot village of Suskiou.

Mother Kills Child, Leaves Hatred Note

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The mother of a two-year-old white girl told police today that she wrote a race-hatred note and left it beside the child's body after strangling her with a strip of bed sheet.

Homicide Lieut. Spurgeon Davenport said Yvonne Robbins, 23, said "I can't stand to see anything suffer" and added her little girl, Terri Odett, was in pain from being hit on the head with a brick by a neighbor child.

Davenport said Mrs. Robbins said the injury occurred Wednesday and she had been afraid to take the child to a doctor because she feared she might be accused of striking the girl.

Mrs. Robbins and her husband Joseph, a sign painter, had reported she found the girl dead early this morning beside a note which read:

"We don't like white kids. Move away or we are going to get another one."

Housewife vs. Little Leaguers

CALGARY (CP)—Mrs. Anne Paliwoda of Calgary has been ordered to return two baseballs that fell in her backyard after being hit by little leaguers, but a charge of theft laid against her was dismissed.

Mrs. Paliwoda told magistrate's court this week windows had been broken and other damage done to her home and property during the last few years.

The problem appeared again this summer when a Little League team held practices on a diamond 30 feet from her home.

After a player retrieved the first ball that fell in her yard, Mrs. Paliwoda kept a second.

The team manager complained and police were called. A second ball landed in her yard while she explained the situation to officers. She kept that one, too.

Mrs. Paliwoda denied a charge by the team manager that she didn't want the children to have fun, but said the fun should not be at her expense.

The motion was moved by Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona) who complained about an editorial headed "The End of the Affair?" which commented on the privileges committee inquiry into an MP's allegations he was offered a fat election fund to join the Liberals.

BANFF—Housewives may soon become obsolete, Professor Marian Gallagher of Seattle, a law instructor at Washington University, said here Tuesday.

Professor Gallagher told about 450 delegates to the 46th annual convention of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority that British scientists expect soon to develop robots to run household appliances.

A robot housemaid with the intelligence of a monkey was the goal of scientists, she said.

"It will be a long time before robots raise children, but there are indications housewives as such are about to become obsolete."

Professor Gallagher said there was no reason why women's education could not continue after an interruption for marriage and raising a family.

SAN FRANCISCO—On any reasonably sunny day, San Francisco's Marina Green is invaded by an army of sunbathers. Wednesday, one of that army was a woman in the new controversial topless-bathing suit.

The history-making sunbather was Mrs. Cathy Hardwick, whose appearance on the Green quickly drew a large crowd of fashion-minded gentlemen.

Mrs. Hardwick, a well-built native of Korea, could not see what the fuss was all about. "In Asia," she said, "when people see the upper body exposed, they don't think anything about it."

Mrs. Hardwick took all the staring in stride, too, for she runs a fashion shop and currently is selling the controversial women's suits, which have only two slim straps above the waist.

VANCOUVER—R. Ross Miller is going around the world in four days without a bath. If that doesn't establish a world record, it will at least be "a record for Moose Jaw," says he.

The retired CPR brakeman of 48 years started his trip Wednesday. He flew here from Regina, left here for Tokyo, thence Hong Kong and so on until he is back in Regina at noon Sunday.

He didn't bother to take a suitcase, or even a toothbrush. He plans to have his next bath at home.

MANILA—Acting Postmaster Belarmino P. Navarro and Philippine newspaper men are at swords' points over his action in burning an issue of Time magazine containing a color reproduction of Goya's The Naked Maja.

Navarro said the picture was obscene. The journalists criticized the ban, asserting the picture was universally recognized as a work of art. They called his action censorship and a threat to a free press.

Navarro struck back with a harsh attack on newspaper men in general.

Journalists, he concluded, "are far worse than all the crooks in government put together."

COMMACK, N.Y.—A woman motorist, distraught because she thought she had run over and killed a dog, suffered a fatal heart attack in her car. The dog, only stunned, got up, shook himself and trotted away.

Witnesses said Mrs. Cecil Lynch, 65, Stony Brook, N.Y., swerved to miss the animal on Jericho Turnpike but the dog fell motionless on the highway. Mrs. Lynch got out, examined the dog, and returned to her car.

A few minutes later, the dog walked away but Mrs. Lynch was found dead in her automobile.

TOPLESS SUIT 'ABSTRACT POINT OF LAW'

Attorney General Robert Bonner is playing it cool on topless swimsuits.

Although none has yet been spotted in B.C. fashion shows in the east have featured new swimsuits that bare the female breast, or cover it only with a transparent wisp.

Officials are unclear how far the law goes in forbidding such attire, but section 158 of the Criminal Code of Canada says that anyone "without lawful excuse" who appears nude in public view is liable to a $500 fine or six months in jail.

Asked if B.C. would enforce this section if a cutie were found getting a little more sun than usual on, say, Willow Beach, Mr. Bonner replied:

"This department does not deal with abstract problems of law."

Stunt Man Loses Suit Against MGM

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A superior court judge Wednesday dismissed a $1,000,000 damage suit filed against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by former movie stunt man Robert D. Morgan.

Morgan, husband of Vancouver-born actress Yvonne De Carlo, had filed the damage suit for injuries he suffered April 9, 1962, during filming of How the West Was Won.

Morgan lost a leg and an eye while doing stunt work on a train robbery scene filmed near Superior, Ariz.

Judge Jack D. Hays ruled Morgan had waived his right to sue his employer because he signed an agreement to accept industrial compensation benefits from the state of Arizona. Afterwards, he accepted about $30,000 in state medical benefits.

During testimony, Morgan said he signed the agreement prior to the accident, and without reading it.

Morgan will receive $7,800 annually from the Arizona Industrial Commission. He said he made about $40,000 a year as a stunt man.

Roulette Fatal

TORONTO (CP)—Wayne Noble Procyk, 23, a fireman in suburban North York, shot and killed himself Wednesday while showing a girl friend how to play Russian roulette. He died in hospital about one hour after putting a single bullet into a .38-calibre revolver, spinning the chamber and pulling the trigger with the gun pressed against his right temple.

ASSAULT, ROBBERY

Youths Guilty Of Abduction

Four 18-year-old Victoria youths were found guilty in County Court Wednesday afternoon of beating and robbing 19-year-old William Morgan of Saanich Road "in a most brutal fashion" on April 7.

Judge Montague Drake found them guilty on one charge of assault and robbery and on another of abducting Morgan, who is a Grade 13 student at Claremont High School.

He called for a pre-sentence report and said he would pass sentence in County Court Wednesday at 10 a.m.

The four youths are Charles Michael Keith Ash, 860 Parklands; Eugene Hunt, 348 Michigan; Russell Tschirter, 946 Ellery; and Lloyd Keith De Wolfe, 1018 Balmoral.

THUMBED RIDE

On the witness stand, Morgan testified that he was walking home along the Patricia Bay Highway when a car stopped after he "thumbed" it for a ride.

He said there were several youths in the car and he saw beer bottles in it. He did not get into the car when he saw the bottles, but one of the occupants jumped out and forced him in.

He was taken to a remote section of Durrance Road, near Rudy's Zoo, where he was

NO DOUBT OF IDENTITY

"I have considered the evidence in this case with some care," Judge Drake said, "and the only question in my mind is the question of identity."

"Identity is a question of fact and I must consider it as would a properly charged jury."

Judge Drake said he was in no doubt that Morgan was "beaten and robbed in a most brutal fashion" by the four accused.

Crown prosecutor Kenneth Murphy held that the identity of the four youths as the assailants had been established beyond reasonable doubt.

His argument was opposed by Jack Gatehouse, defence for Tschirter and De Wolfe; Kenneth Cox for Hunt and Gerald Sinnott for Ash.

The hearing lasted three days.

$27,000 in Damages For Hotel Accident

MONTREAL (CP)—A Superior Court judge has ordered Hilton of Canada Ltd., to pay more than $27,000 damages to the family of a 70-year-old Edmonton woman who was knocked down by a baggage truck in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in July 1962.

Mrs. Nell MacLean died recently after the action was started. It was resumed on behalf of her estate by two daughters.

The hotel admitted responsibility for the incident. The decision on the amount of damages was left to Mr. Justice Frederic Collins of Quebec Superior Court.

In assessing the damages, Mr. Justice Collins said Wednesday the blow caused a "terrific strain" on the woman's heart.

It was reported that at the time of the incident, Mrs. MacLean seemed only to have superficial bruises, but when she arrived in Edmonton a few days later her physician ordered her to hospital, saying her condition had deteriorated.

A doctor examiner at a rotary commission sitting in Edmonton said he was convinced her condition, which recurred

NEW FLAGS SELL FAST IN TORONTO

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's proposed new flag has turned into a money-making business for four Toronto men who tour downtown streets peddling the small maple leaf flags at $1 each. The four say they have made $1,000 since last Wednesday. They print the flags, designed primarily for car aerials, at home by a silk screen process.

TORIES DON'T WANT IT

Rough Passage Seen for 'Jack'

By STEWART MACLEOD
OTTAWA (CP)—The split in the flag resolution, while adding voting strength to the distinctive Canadian flag, may mean a rough reception for the proposal to give some recognition to the Union Jack.

"I'll never vote for the Union Jack," says a Conservative backbencher who stoutly advocates the retention of the red ensign.

"There'll be a lot of red ensign supporters to go against the Union Jack," said another member of the party. "We want the ensign because it's a Canadian flag; we don't want the British flag."

The Commons now is debating the first part of the resolution dealing with the proposed adoption of a distinctive Canadian national flag—three red maple leaves on a white background with a vertical blue bar at each side.

If and when this is voted on, the second part of the resolution will be brought before the members. This would provide that the Union Jack "may continue to be flown as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth of Nations and our allegiance to the Crown."

RESOLUTION SPLIT

Originally, members were to have voted on the two questions at once. But when the resolution came before the House Monday, Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled that the two issues would be voted on separately.

The division seemed to assure a big majority for the new flag because many Quebec members, who opposed inclusion of the Union Jack, were now free to vote on the new flag by itself.

The 13-member Creditiste party, which had previously said it couldn't support the "two-flag resolution," said it would throw all its weight behind the maple leaf flag. Quebec members in the Conservative party made the same decision.

Initial reaction had suggested the Union Jack portion of the resolution would also breeze through the Commons when it arose. It was generally assumed that most of the Conservative members who are fighting on behalf of the red ensign would automatically stand for the Union Jack.

Not so, says one of the backbenchers. "The Union Jack is not a Canadian flag, and we don't want it as such. And what we're really opposed to is two flags. We've been clear on this."

HARD TO PLAN STRATEGY

But he said there would be difficulty in planning strategy because a vote against the Union Jack could be easily misunderstood in home constituencies.

"We haven't got that problem," said a Quebec member of the party. "The Quebec members of the party will probably all vote for the new flag and against the Union Jack."

Quebec members of other opposition parties are also expected to be against the second resolution although most Liberals will likely support the Union Jack.

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons flag debate goes on the shelf today in favor of action on a constitutional amendment enabling widows and orphans to receive benefits under the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

Only four MPs—two Liberals and two Progressive Conservatives—were able to get into the flag debate during Wednesday's half-day Commons sitting.

It won't be revived until Parliament sends on its way to the British Parliament a request that the British North America Act be amended to permit the Canadian Parliament to legislate survivor benefits in the proposed contributory pension plan.

The constitutional amendment has been approved by the 10 provinces and the federal government wants to get it through before the Parliament at Westminster is dissolved for the British general election.

In Wednesday's flag debate, Conservatives Robert C. Coates (Cumberland) and O. W. Weichel (Waterloo North) coupled their support for retention of the red ensign with new calls for a plebiscite to settle the question.

LIBERALS BACK NEW FLAG

On the other side, Liberals Bryce Mackasey (Montreal-Yves) and John R. Matheson (Leeds) backed the government's proposed design—three red maple leaves on a white ground with a blue bar at each side—as acceptable to all Canadians.

Mr. Mackasey, noting that his riding is about evenly divided between French- and English-Canadians, said the maple leaf flag will not emphasize the differences of background but be a symbol acceptable to all national origins in Canada.

He urged MPs not to fall "into the trap of hatred" or to judge Quebec and French-Canada by the acts of separatists.

A plebiscite would "deteriorate into a carbon copy of a general election" with countless Canadians caught in the swirl of emotion. It would emphasize cultural differences and widen still bridgeable differences of opinion.

Mr. Matheson, sometimes called the father of the government's design, rejected the red ensign as not being distinctively Canadian because it is flown by countless countries, merchant vessels, clubs and organizations in one form or another.

MUST RETAIN LINKS

He traced the three-leaf symbol as representing Canada back to pre-Confederation days, arguing that if flags don't retain some traditional link such as this with the past Canada might as well take the republican course of breaking with tradition.

"I personally hope this doesn't happen," he said.

He said to those who say the design is a concession to the French: "The French are part of Canada—part of our family."

"In a family, every member is loved... and the interests and anxieties of each are important. The distress of one is the distress of all."

"I do not think it is a concession to do what is just and what is kind. It is only by caring for one another and being joined together and firmly rooted in this rich Canadian soil that our maple leaf family can survive."

Mr. Coates, concluding a speech interrupted by Tuesday night's adjournment, saw "shame in the action that has been taken by this government in automatically and dictatorially forcing a personal pennant, a flag that is meaningless, on the Canadian public."

The red ensign was Canadian by adoption, tradition and assimilation, he said. It contained the Union Jack, the maple leaf and the fleur-de-lis.

OFFER to serve in South Vietnam "in any capacity" (presumably including ambassador) was made by U.S. Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy, above, to President Johnson, it was learned today. Johnson thanked Kennedy for offer, apparently prompted by belief Ambassador Lodge might resign, but was not prepared to accept it.

Bennett Says Government To Buy Small Bank Share

HANEY (CP)—The B.C. government probably won't acquire more than 5 or 10 per cent of the shares of the proposed new bank of British Columbia, says Premier Bennett. He told a banquet meeting of Social Crediters here Wednesday night that while the government had passed legislation permitting it to acquire up to 25 per cent of the bank's shares, "we only did that to show the people of B.C. that the government had confidence in the new bank."

Referring to opposition expressed in the Senate proper to the bank bill, Mr. Bennett said: "If the Senate wishes to say which Canadians should or should not be shareholders in a bank it should change the Bank Act—not our application."

Fisherman Law-Bound So Kingfisher Feasts

A Cadboro Bay man is standing by with an empty gun while a kingfisher daily raids his trout pool.

Keith Henderson, 3796 Cordova Bay Road, has been denied permission to shoot the bird.

The pool is on his acre of land in the Mystic Springs area, and was stocked with 400 fingerling trout about 10 days ago.

Now, the kingfisher arrives each morning, selects his breakfast from the pond, and leaves—and Mr. Henderson can't do a thing about it.

He originally planned to add another 1,000 trout to the pool, but now it looks as if he'd just be adding to the bird's banquet.

"This is a heavily wooded area, and I thought it would not be dangerous to use a light shot at the kingfisher at close range. It wouldn't carry far," he says.

Discharging firearms within Saanich boundaries is prohibited.

Dividing the Loaf

MUCH REMAINS TO BE clarified regarding the announced plans for financing new construction at the three public universities in British Columbia. But one thing is clear: the big squeeze is on. The expected contest between the three institutions for government and contributed funds, while eased to some extent by voluntary co-operative action among the universities, has not been eliminated. The prospect is a nip-and-tuck existence for all three, but particularly for the smallest, the University of Victoria.

It is calculated as a rule of thumb, for instance, that it costs $6,000 per student to provide adequate university accommodation, including classrooms, administration space, heating plants, grounds and so on. On this basis, with an increased student enrolment of 300 each year, Uvic would need $1.8 of new construction annually. The 300 is a very conservative estimate according to those studying the trend. Yet under the present arrangement the university will receive a bare $1.8 annually over the next five years even if the public appeal achieves its goal and this is thought to be very doubtful.

The prospect is that Uvic will be short several millions in requirements over the five-year period—a forecast of barrel-scraping, delay and possibly restricted enrolments that will put a severe hardship on the institution and those who seek to attend it.

If large national or industrial donors elect to assign their donations to a specific university rather than to the "pool," Victoria may lose out still further, for established research facilities at UBC, for instance, will naturally attract their interest. With Simon Fraser University guaranteed the first $4 millions in public donations for its crash program—although how Mr. Bennett can assume this power of directing private gifts is not clear—Victoria's building program will be set back a year in any case. Where will the Victoria students find class rooms?

If there are solutions to these questions, they have not yet been publicized. Nor has the whereabouts of Uvic's 1961 matching grant of $500,000 promised by the government and still awaited.

Obviously the province is caught in a student-population explosion for which little advance preparation had been made. Educational buildings are rising in meadow and on hillside with their facilities crowded almost before the contractors leave. This emergency will take much more than ordinary government measures, and more than ordinary patience and support from the people of the province. The generous response of companies and individuals to the forthcoming appeal for funds will be more important than ever. If British Columbia doesn't provide adequate higher educational facilities for its youth—who will?

Britain Looks at Fish Limits

A BRIEF REUTERS REPORT from London says that the House of Commons this week agreed in principle to a bill which would give Britain exclusive fishing jurisdiction over the sea extending six miles from its coasts and would restrict foreign fishing in a further six-mile belt to fishermen of those nations that have traditionally fished there.

In other words, Britain appears poised for a plunge into the six-plus-six fishing limit proposal analogous to that considered in Canada when the law of the sea revisions were proposed four or five years ago. At that time, however, the popular concept involved limits which would fix the inner six-mile area as territorial waters, not just waters claimed for exclusive fishing jurisdiction.

Canada's plan for a 12-mile fishing zone extending from its shores is different in detail—though it is understood historic rights would be honored by this country for some time at least.

The proposed British action emphasizes recognition of the fact that maritime nations have to act now to protect their own fisheries in a world where the harvest of the sea is subject to increasing invasion from modern foreign fishing fleets. We in this country are some distance yet from achieving the Canadian objective of a 12-mile fishing limit, but others are in step with us in the march toward the goal.

Spokesman's Choice

AT A PRESS CONFERENCE Monday Premier Bennett stated the proposed B.C. Hydro bus fare increases are "nothing to do with the government." The Hydro is an autonomous crown corporation, the premier said, and he had only learned of the proposed increases in news reports.

At the same press conference Mr. Bennett announced that some $800,000 in contracts for relocating a CPR line near the site of the High Arrow dam will be let Friday by the B.C. Hydro and that the crown corporation will let a general contract for about $2,200,000 for Arrow Lakes development Aug. 31.

Does it occur to anyone that when a crown corporation has anything unpleasant to announce great stress is laid on the corporation's autonomy and non-relationship to the government, while when there is good news of any kind Premier Bennett is always on hand to make the announcement?

Who, for instance, announces electricity rate cuts to be made by the "autonomous" B.C. Hydro?

The Moment of Truth

A CHANGE OF JOB CAN change a man's viewpoint. For instance we don't recall Mr. George Hees, when he was one of Mr. John Diefenbaker's chief lieutenants, saying that the theory that Canada is being taken over by foreign financiers is "pure poppycock."

Mr. Hees, of course, may have thought such thoughts during his term as a minister in the Conservative government but it certainly would have been unwise to speak them.

Now, however, Mr. Hees is no longer in politics. He has taken over the job of president of the Montreal Stock Exchange and can afford to be more candid. In a speech in Montreal the other day he noted that politicians at election time continually raise "this old bugaboo" of foreign control. They say the election of their particular party is the only thing that can "save Canada for Canadians" but this "is used for the sole purpose of winning votes in an election."

We're sure Mr. Hees never took such a cynical view of politicians in general while he was in politics so it must have been the re-education he undertook before stepping into the job of selling Canadians on the virtues of investing in the stock market that has prompted him to be so candid about his former career. Or was Mr. Hees referring only to the politicians in parties other than his own?

A-Plus Rating

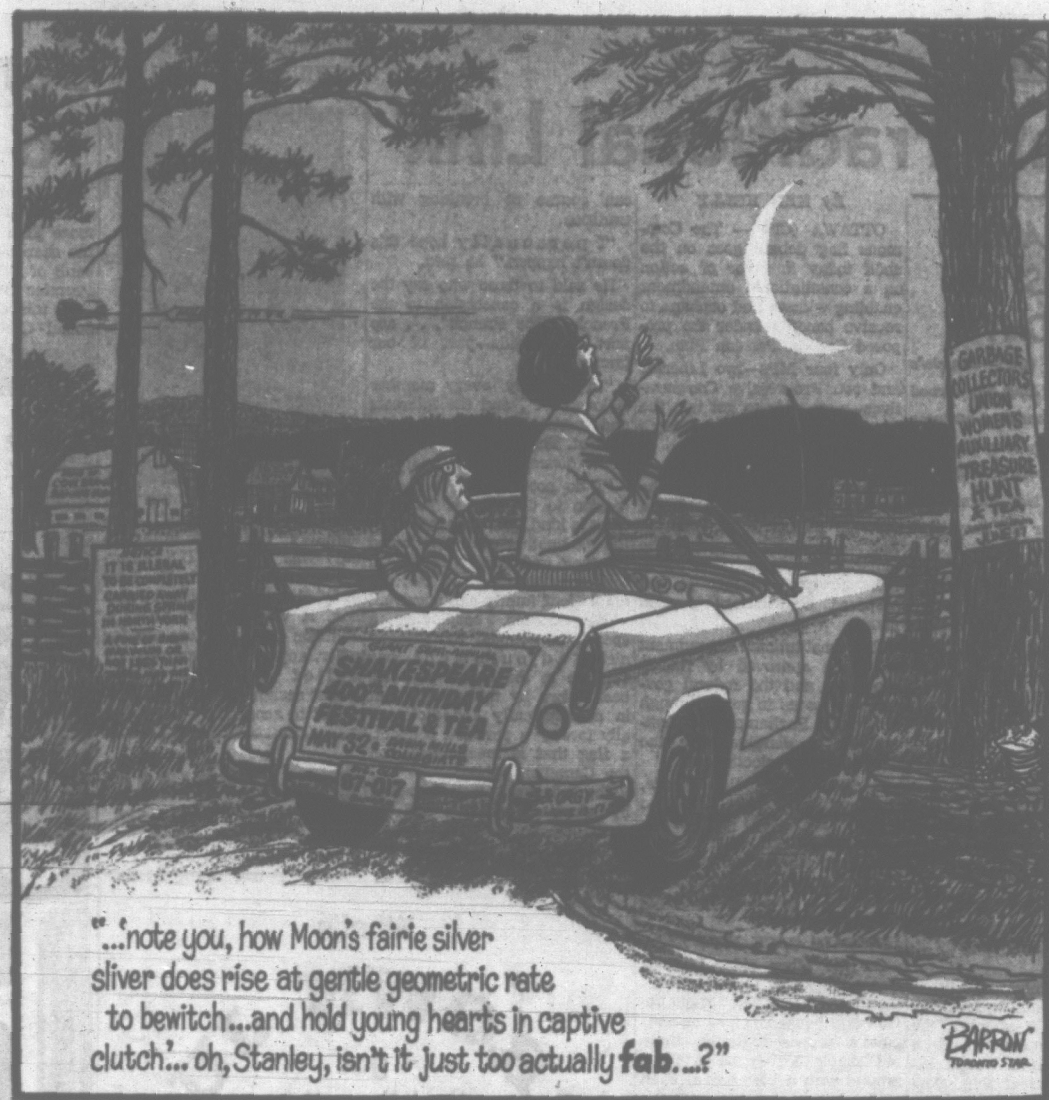

TO A GREAT MANY PEOPLE—and by no means all of them in the American Deep South—the Negro race is mentally inferior to the white race. From this belief, which is held in defiance of common sense and scientific knowledge, springs the argument that it is pointless to spend much money educating Negroes and unfair to "mentally superior" white children to force them to go to school with Negro children who would lower the standards of education.

What reaction, we wonder, do the people who think in this way have to the news that Miss Jacqueline Faye Evans, a Negro student at Little Rock High School, graduated this week with highest honors, an A-plus rating which earned her nomination to a national honor society and recognition as a "presidential scholar"?

Miss Evans is, of course, only the latest in a long, long list of people of her race who have exhibited superior intellects, but her accomplishment seems more pointed since it was achieved against the background of the Arkansas town which seven years ago was the scene of the first federal enforcement of desegregation of schools.

As other Negro young people, given anything like an equal opportunity with white young people to study and learn, emulate Miss Evans' accomplishments, the anti-segregationists will be forced to face the fact that their beliefs are based not on any actual superiority but only on bigotry.

"...note you, how Moon's fairie silver sliver does rise at gentle geometric rate to bewitch...and hold young hearts in captive clutch...oh, Stanley, isn't it just too actually fab...?"

FROM NEW DELHI

By CYRIL DUNN

After Nehru — 'All India is Dark'

IN THE sobering crisis caused by the death of Mr. Nehru, at the start of the inevitable new era, how do the people feel in the villages, commonly called Nehru's India?

This country surely has the biggest single collection of villages in the world. On a clear day, flying at no great height over the bare, Gangetic Plain, you may see as many as 100 at a time, like knots of black embroidery on the sand-colored backcloth of the earth.

It is in these settlements that most of India's millions live, a latent political power which would be decisive if anyone ever gave it a sense of direction.

If you are willing to accept from this multitude a single sample, taken at random, the answer about current feelings seems to be this. There is a blind and rather helpless resentment against the ruling Congress Party, especially among the younger villagers, coupled quite cheerfully with a universal and adoring gratitude towards the party's great leader and creator, now departed. There is also an underlying conviction, without Nehru the Congress Party will find itself in sad difficulty.

On the day they carried a part of Pandit Nehru's ashes across North India for immersion in the Ganges, I motored out ahead of the funeral train for 30 miles or so to a village close beside the line of rail. It lay to the south of the Grand Trunk Road—the road of adventure for Kipling's Kim—down a side lane rutted and deep in white dust.

Typical Village

To an outsider it looked like every other Indian village, though no doubt to the eyes of love line differences were obvious. Probably the homesick would remember the little white temple at the village entry, shaped like a bishop's mitre, and with curly-tailed monkeys carved in plaster around its peak.

On a mission like this in Britain to say, a Cornish village, a reporter might well find himself fobbed off with monosyllables. Not here. My interpreter set things going when we were still in the lane, by asking an old gentleman what Congress had done for him. Sharp ears in the adjacent fields picked up the thread and we were soon in the middle of a shouting debate. We had uncovered a local passion for politics.

An ox cart picked us up and carried us like a stout sea boat over the ruts and into the village. The driver said Congress had done nothing for him. We asked him why, then, did he vote for Congress?

"For whom else could I vote?" he shouted, as if tormented by our absurdity.

And this, indeed, is India's dilemma. No politician can do anything for anybody without the power the Congress Party still seems exclusively to command. In other lands the underprivileged are willing to wait while their leaders struggle toward power, but who could expect the Indian peasant—subjugated for centuries, the expected rewards of freedom already overdue—to be equally patient?

Conversation of Males

The ox cart dropped us under the village neem tree, where string beds encircle the village pipe of peace, the common hookah with the long stem. Here we were joined by all the village males, from pot-bellied infants to the hoarsest elders.

The elders naturally had the first word. Having established in a mild aside to my companion that I belonged to the sahib log—the old British master race—one of them said in answer to the set question: "Congress freed us from the British and from the landlords. What more could we ask?"

Another in the Gandhi cap of Congress said the Party had done "a lot" for the village. I asked my interpreter to press him for details, but my friend replied: "I can't do that. It might embarrass us all." But at this point we were joined by a young villager on leave from the Indian Air Force, and several others in his age group. They insisted that Congress had done nothing for the village, and were eager, in their negative way, to be specific.

Nothing had been done to improve the village paths, which were indeed like the rugged beds of deep and narrow streams. The village school was still the village hall, a small open-sided room into which during the monsoon 200 children were crowded. They agreed reluctantly that malaria had been reduced, but added triumphantly that rats were multiplying. They said—and exposed the root of their discontent—that the young and bright in the village could get no fitting work to do, that even now we could see a graduate working beside his illiterate father in the fields.

Criticism of Party

All through the young man's diatribe against Nehru's Congress Party ran like counterpoint an extravagant praise of Nehru himself. He used dramatic phrases. "Nehru is gone," he said, "and all India is dark." In the end he asked him how he could reconcile attitudes which struck us as contradictory.

He had no difficulty. His village had been neglected, he said, because Nehru had not "come to know about it." The truth had been hidden from him by Congress officials. This was obviously so, he said, because the village only just across the Grand Trunk Road had been given electricity in no time at all, simply because Nehru had announced he would visit it. The young man seemed to believe that Nehru thought all Indian villages were like the ones he actually saw, and that perfection would have been universal if Nehru had been able to see them all.

The young ones were sardonic about the Congress Party's future with its leader gone. "Now we shall see what they can do," said the air force boy, and seemed convinced that some empty pretensions were about to be exposed. And one suddenly sensed the disarming and unreasonable psychological difficulties confronting poor Lal Bahadur, successor to an immaculate idol. (London Observer Service)

WASHINGTON:

Scranton and GOP Future

By WALTER LIPPMANN

GOV. William Scranton is doing a big service to the country in challenging Sen. Barry Goldwater. There is at stake in this conflict the future of the Republican Party, and the issue is nothing less than whether the old party is to be captured by a faction which rejects its basic principles and is alienated from its historic tradition.

The whole country must be concerned with this struggle. For if the radical right, which Sen. Norris Cotton, who is a Goldwater supporter, calls the arch-conservatives, achieve the unconditional surrender of the party, they will not only split it. For years to come they will have a monopoly of the official opposition to the Democrats. This will be exceedingly bad for the Democrats as well as for the old Republicans. For without a respectable and genuine opposition, the Democratic Party will become soft and confused and vulnerable to factions.

The critical question now is not whether Governor Scranton can at this late date stop the Goldwater machine. The important thing is that the party will not be surrendered without a fight and that there will remain, therefore, a man around whom the party can rally for the elections of 1966 and 1968.

Can't Lose

This is in fact a struggle in which Governor Scranton cannot lose. Even if he does not win the nomination in San Francisco, he will have made himself the rallying point for the future. He will have averted the collapse into surrender which Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was willing to let happen.

We can afford to assume that the key to the Republican situation lies in the fact that all the leading Republican figures regard President Johnson as virtually unbeatable in 1964.

It is disbelief in victory this year that is the secret of Goldwater's success. There has been no leader, except Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who has thought the nomination worth fighting for. This is also the secret of Governor Scranton's long abstention. He has assumed that the nomination would be worth having only under the most improbable conditions—that he won it by acclamation of the Goldwater plus the Rockefeller and Lodge factions.

This impossible calculation led him into the humiliating situation of that Sunday morning some 10 days ago when General Eisenhower ordered him to surrender. After that painful experience, he realized quickly what had happened, and in that moment of illumination he understood that his original assumption was false. He had assumed that the question was whether the nomination was worth having this year. By Thursday evening last week he had seen that the real question was whether the party was to be surrendered without a fight, not only in 1964, but in fact for 1966 and 1968 as well.

Eisenhower Question

If Governor Scranton is to win the nomination, he will need General Eisenhower. For that, General Eisenhower will have to grasp the issue—that the party is about to be captured—and he will have to take a firm stand with the Scranton forces. But this is to assume that the Eisenhower of 1964 is still the same man around whom the moderate and progressive Republicans rallied in 1952. It is perhaps too hopeful an assumption.

The Eisenhower of 1964 can be seen in an article he signed for publication in the Saturday Evening Post in April and in the speech which he delivered to the Governor's Conference in Cleveland on June 8. These documents show that he has become a Goldwater "conservative"—without the harum-scarum jingoism of Barry Goldwater.

It has been the practice of the Republican moderates to pretend that the national philosophy of Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt was also the philosophy of Dwight Eisenhower. It is not. Especially during his retirement, General Eisenhower has come to share with Senator Goldwater a profound distrust and dislike of the federal government, to which, incidentally, Dwight Eisenhower himself owes everything he is and has. That is why there has been no rally around General Eisenhower to resist the surrender of the party. That inner citadel was surrendered some time ago—in the Shangri-las at Gettysburg and Palm Springs which are so well-sheltered from the harsh realities of the real world of 1964.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

What About 'Velvet'?

With reference to the proposed increase in bus fares from 13 cents to 25 cents by the B.C. government, it might be well to rectify the following facts:

Before the government took over the B.C. Electric Company this company, after absorbing the loss of approximately $24 millions in bus fares, paid a federal tax of approximately $13 millions and reported approximately $16 millions in profits.

As the B.C. government pays no federal tax they should show a profit of nearly $30 millions on electricity and gas sold to the public in one year, and as the manager claims the loss on bus fares this year will run to $4 millions, then the difference between $4 millions and $24 millions will amount to $14 millions to be deducted from nearly $30 millions.

What has happened to this amount and why increase the bus fares?

The government bought the package including buses and should therefore continue to operate the same.

BUS USER.

A Holdup

City buses that move throughout our city of Victoria without purpose would be useless. Their usefulness is transportation of people from work, amusement and shopping, etc. This is a public service.

To watch people, young and old, stand around for 20 minutes and sometimes more, waiting for a bus, with few of the bus stops favored with a bench to rest on, gives one the feeling of a lost cause even for a 13-cent fare.

Our city favors the call for older people to retire here from other places, even if they live on limited pension incomes.

The climate is mild, and the city beautiful, but it is not good if living costs, including bus fares, continue to rise beyond everyday reach.

The new suggested bus fare raise to 25 cents or five tickets for $1 will mean at least 40 cents return each time we require to use a bus around the city.

It would seem a "holdup." So one protests, with a gentle sigh of despair, with the thought to begin a hunt for a walking stick, during the wait between buses while they are still 13 cents.

Circus Cruelty

Each year I have cause to admire the SPCA for taking a stand on behalf of the circus animals, who in the name of charity suffer untold cruelties during breaking and training.

Only last week a newspaper report included the remark of Capt. W. Horne "a real mean tiger . . . I know I am their boss and they respect me, but they are always wild animals at heart and that will never change."

A constant line of training, transportation and confined quarters add up to unwarranted abuse of animals for our "entertainment." We can have exciting circuses without wild animal acts.

When will the Shriners find a more acceptable way of raising money for their worthy cause?

Worth Saving

"Old Manor to Be Restored," says the headline.

At last it has been realized that one thing in our midst is worth saving. Help has come from the federal government. Now it is up to our progressive premier to give the final lift.

We hear of our booming tourist trade; let us give them what they do not get at home, and the records show that The Manor is really appreciated.

To those of us native-born, it is part of our history, long may it stay to reveal our pioneer past and show the dignity of life as it was lived over a hundred years ago.

June 18, 1904 — St. Petersburg: Memorial services were held today for General Bobrikoff, Governor of Finland, who was shot two days ago and died yesterday.

June 18, 1924 — Victoria: "I predict a minimum wage for boys," Joseph B. Clearhue, who is seeking re-election on the Liberal ticket, said in an address last night.

June 18, 1944 — Victoria: The proposed $100,000 Saanich school building program has been defeated by 19 votes, it was announced today.

'Habitual' Appeal Granted by Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man who had been declared an habitual criminal was freed of the count Wednesday by the British Columbia Court of Appeal.

In permitting such an appeal for the first time, the appellate court ruled that Patrick James Jeffries, 30, of Vancouver should not have been declared an habitual criminal "simply because he is a drug addict."

A police court magistrate here earlier had convicted Jeffries on his 10th count involving theft and breaking and entering, and granted a prosecution motion declaring him an habitual criminal. The court had been told Jeffries was addicted to narcotics.

Habitual criminal proceedings have been used widely here in a crackdown against repeated offenders, particularly those selling or being involved with illicit narcotics. The declaration means indefinite imprisonment.

In his submission to the appellate court Jeffries said that for nine months prior to his last conviction he had stayed out of trouble and had obtained a job.

In handing down the high-court judgment Mr. Justice N. W. Whittaker said habitual criminal proceedings are a "serious step" that result in indefinite imprisonment, and courts therefore required "proof beyond a reasonable doubt."

Jeffries' record did not indicate a life-of-crime pattern, and "the fact that the person involved during such an interval was a user of drugs, in the absence of other evidence of criminal activity, is not in my opinion sufficient to support a finding that such a person is an habitual criminal."

"To remove a person from society permanently simply because he is a drug addict would be to deny the possibility of a cure either through the addict's own efforts or with the assistance of any public agency set up to alleviate the problem."

A FORMER Victoria man, who served 13 years with the British Columbia Government Travel Bureau, has been appointed manager of the London branch of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau. Arthur Peers, presently manager of the San Francisco office, will take over the position in June. Married, with two children, he was assistant director of the B.C. bureau before transferring to the Canadian bureau.

Umbrella of Jets Protects Nikita

Times News Service

COPENHAGEN — NATO jet fighters from the Danish air force formed a high-altitude protective umbrella over Russian Premier Khrushchev as he left here in a Scandinavian Airlines plane today to spend a full day studying farming in Denmark.

He headed for the rich dairy farming island of Fuen, between the Jutland Peninsula and Zealand to visit three farms and an agricultural college.

Later in the day he planned to visit the home of fairy tale writer Hans Christian Andersen in Odense.

Khrushchev had frequently pointed to the Scandinavian countries' intensive cultivation of their limited farmland as a model for Soviet farmers.

The Russians in talks Wednesday with Danish Premier Jens Otto Krag indicated they are interested in introducing Danish breeds of cattle and pigs into the Soviet Union.

Danes Get Needling Over Value of Gold

COPENHAGEN (AP)—Soviet

Premier Khrushchev needed a banquet hall audience about gold Wednesday night, recalling that Lenin advocated lining lavatories with it.

The visiting Russian leader announced that the Soviets had signed orders during the day for four Danish ships. Then he gently reproached the Danes for not buying more Soviet industrial products.

"We are not rich, but poor people. We make our riches by our work. If you don't buy from us, we won't have the money to buy from you," he said.

Departing from his text, Khrushchev said capitalists "always bend over backwards to make us pay in gold. But we cannot go around and spend all our gold on this. You know that Lenin once told us that when communism has been built we should build lavatories and line them with gold."

"How should we then face Lenin if we had no gold to line our lavatories in the short time from now when communism has been built?" Khrushchev asked. "This was the way that Lenin expressed his contempt for gold and his great respect for man. . . . But you wouldn't understand this. Perhaps you will understand later."

Fish Vessel Regulations 'Softened'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate Tuesday night softened the impact of proposed mandatory qualifications for masters and mates of fishing vessels.

Approval was given to committee suggestions that any man who can show he has served one season as master or mate prior to Dec. 1, 1965, will be able to get a certificate without a test.

However, men becoming masters or mates for the first time would have to pass the tests to acquire the necessary certificates. Other changes in the Shipping Act amending bill include these provisions:

1. Tugs of less than 150 tons on the West Coast operating in local waters do not need certified engineers—a measure specially applicable to the West Coast.

2. Tugs powered by internal combustion engines of a certain size must have a certified engineer.

The measure now awaits third reading and then goes to the Commons.

Elderly Driver Found Impaired

A 72-year-old man was convicted in city court Wednesday of impaired driving.

Ronald Stobie, 39, West Gorge Road, was fined $200 and lost his licence.

He was charged after police saw his car weaving along Gorge Road early in the morning of May 19. Evidence showed he almost hit three cars.

Higher Costs Hit Profits

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Higher unit costs attributed to causes of a temporary nature resulted in a 10.5 per cent drop in operating profit for Bethlehem Copper Corp. Ltd. in the three months to May 31 compared with the same period last year. Consulting engineer J. A. C. Ross, whose report on the Highland Valley mine takes the place of the usual quarterly report from president, H. H. Huettner, says that the causes leading to higher costs are in the process of being corrected.

The operating profit for the quarter was $641,941 compared with $716,797 in the 1963 period, equal to 14.4 cents a share, compared with 18.9 cents.

Cost of producing a pound of copper averaged 21.93 cents in the 1964 quarter compared with 18.6 cents in 1963, Mr. Ross said, due to ore occurrences in the south end of the open pit proving to be less than anticipated, creating a problem of extra waste which was compounded by mechanical breakdown and winter weather conditions. Some turnover of skilled operators was also a difficulty.

However, production in the current quarter is expected to be back to normal with the exception of some interruptions caused by the plant expansion program. In the latter part of the year production will be above normal as waste removal will drop and the grade of ore will be about 1.15 per cent copper. Expected cash flow at present copper prices will permit milling expansion to 10,000 tons daily within two years after the 6,000-ton rate currently being prepared for becomes effective and no interruption in dividend payment would be anticipated.

A recalculation of the Jersey pit ore reserves using a larger pit design has more than doubled the life of the pit and exploration has indicated a major ore body in the Huettner zone, Mr. Ross said.

First shipment of molybdenum concentrates, amounting to 12,000 pounds, was made June 5 and estimated monthly profit from the rare metal is expected to reach $64,500 by the end of 1965.

Net earnings were $441,039 for the year compared with $330,405 for 1962. Gross revenues were up 11.8 per cent while expenses increased 11.5 per cent. A large part of the earnings increase, $49,000, resulted from an income tax department ruling altering the method of charging overhead back to 1961.

Okanagan Telephone Co. president F. A. Sherrin has reported a 22 per cent increase in the company's net profit for 1963.

ALL-CANADIAN ASSETS JUMP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Total assets of all-Canadian funds have increased 25.6 per cent to $36,500,000 so far this year, company president Art Phillips reported here Wednesday.

This followed a 41 per cent increase in assets to $45,000,000 last year, which was revealed in the annual report Tuesday.

Standard Oil to Take Over Canadian Delhi

CLEVELAND (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio), has entered into an agreement to purchase the acreage, production, reserves and facilities for oil and gas of Canadian Delhi Oil Ltd., of Calgary.

The investment could range anywhere from $8,000,000 to $17,000,000.

Before completing the transaction with Sohio, Canadian Delhi, subject to approval of holders of 51 per cent of its outstanding common shares, would sell to stockholders its investments of 843,327 shares of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.; 146,000 shares of Quebec Natural Gas Corp., and all shares of Candel International Ltd., a subsidiary of Canadian Delhi.

Then, Canadian Delhi would sell its outstanding common shares to Sohio Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Sohio. Price would be about $3.25 a share.

The transaction is contingent upon Sohio obtaining at least 51 per cent of Canadian Delhi common on favorable rulings from Canadian and U.S. tax authorities.

If all Canadian Delhi common shares are turned over, Sohio's investment would amount to $17,347,343.

Imbalance In Trade Takes Jump

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's deficit in merchandise trade, tourist spending, payments of interest and dividends and other non-merchandise transactions shot up to $341,000,000 in the first quarter of this year.

The Bureau of Statistics said Wednesday this deficit was 40 per cent higher than the $238,000,000 imbalance a year earlier. It also was more than triple the $108,000,000 deficit in the final quarter of 1963.

The widening deficit was entirely with the United States. Canada's current-account deficit with the U.S. jumped sharply to $343,000,000 in the first quarter—56 per cent higher than the year earlier deficit of $347,000,000.

Overseas surpluses partly offset this. These surpluses almost doubled to $202,000,000 from $109,000,000 a year earlier, reflecting mainly the Russian wheat sales.

The overall $341,000,000 current-account deficit was only partly covered by a net capital inflow of $299,000,000. The result was a $42,000,000 decline in Canada's first-quarter holdings of gold and foreign exchange together with the Canadian position in the International Monetary Fund.

Long-term capital again began flowing into the country. The net inflow in the first quarter was $38,000,000 compared with a $23,000,000 outflow in the last quarter of 1963.

In short-term funds, Canada had a net inflow of $241,000,000—the largest quarterly amount since the third quarter of 1962, when capital began re-entering the country following the exchange crisis a few months earlier.

Negro Businessmen To Get Aid of Banks

NEW YORK (AP)—An inter-racial group, with a son of New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller as co-chairman, will provide technical advice for Negro businessmen who need loans but don't know how to get them.

The group will assist Negroes already in business, and those who want to go into business. Fourteen leading commercial banks including the Chase Manhattan Bank and the First National City Bank of New York have agreed to co-operate in the program.

The plans of the Inter-racial Council for Business Opportunity were announced at a press conference Wednesday by Rodman Rockefeller and Harvey C. Russell, the other co-chairman and vice-president of the Pepsi-Cola Company.

The council is co-sponsored by the American Jewish Congress and the Urban League of Greater New York, a unit of the National Urban League which is dedicated to fostering inter-racial amity and bettering the lot of Negroes and other minority groups.

The council, formed last October, has started to hire an administrative staff on the basis of a grant of $25,000 from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund and promises of support from other philanthropic funds, corporations and the federal government.

Only 18 per cent of the retail businesses in New York's Harlem Negro community are owned by Negroes, the council says, and in the entire city there are only a dozen Negro-owned businesses employing more than 10 persons.

Immigration Law Safeguard Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—Adoption of an amendment to the Criminal Code which would prevent prolonged detention without trial of persons accused of violating federal immigration laws was urged in the Senate Wednesday by Senator David Croll of Toronto.

Car Design Blamed For Accident

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—General Motors Corp. has paid $70,000 to settle a suit brought by a woman who said she lost an arm in an accident because the manufacturer's car was badly designed.

Mrs. Rose Pierini of Santa Barbara sued General Motors for $300,000, claiming the 1961 crash was caused because her car—a Chevrolet Corvair—was "inherently dangerous because 63 per cent of its weight is concentrated over the rear end."

Mrs. Pierini's lawyer said the distribution of weight in the rear-engine Corvair made it oversteer and caused the accident. GM said the car had no engineering defects and blamed the crash on driver negligence.

The trial had been expected to last six weeks. But, Tuesday, after a week and a half of trial, the car firm reached an agreement with Mrs. Pierini, court records disclosed Wednesday.

General Motors made no statement after the settlement.

ommended that the immigration department provide sympathetic legal counsel for all persons detained under the Immigration Act.

Referring to recent Toronto cases where immigrants claimed to have been detained under provisions of the Immigration Act for a number of days without any action being taken, Senator Croll said:

"The mere possibility that a person may be held in detention for a protracted period without public knowledge is abhorrent to me and many other people both in and out of public life."

He suggested that two sections of the Criminal Code be made to apply not only to accused persons but to anyone who was detained under provisions of any federal act.

One section makes it mandatory that the accused be taken before a justice of the peace within 24 hours of his arrest. The second provides that an inquiry cannot be adjourned for more than eight days except in certain special circumstances such as the illness of the accused.

The bill under discussion in the Senate Wednesday would amend the Criminal Code to allow for an appeal by a prisoner against the order of a judge who refused to discharge him under habeas corpus.

We'll give you a Volvo Canadian for 24 hours. Drive it around town. Drive it in the country. Drive it the way you normally drive.

It'll be equipped with our new automatic transmission. A transmission so efficient that it doesn't affect the unusual gas mileage a Volvo gets—over 30 miles to the gallon. Do you know of any other compact that gets over 30 miles to the gallon with automatic transmission? Neither do we.

And do you know of any other compact that could last an average of eleven years in Sweden where 80% of the roads are unpaved, where there are no speed limits on the highways, where winter temperatures drop to 30° below? Neither do we.

One more thing. Performance. Volvo not only won the 1964 Canadian Shell 4000, it swept all four major categories. No car has ever done that before. As we said, Volvo is no ordinary automobile.

What do you say? Volvos are now built in Canada. Take one home. See how good a car we Canadians make.

SAYS ANGRY QUEBECKER:

Separatists Just Nazi Anti-Rebels

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

MONTREAL (CP)—Is separatism really popular in Quebec? Do the separatists expect to win power in a free election?

The answer to both questions is no, says Pierre-Elliott Trudeau, a University of Montreal law professor and one of the province's most prominent—and angriest—intellectuals.

"I get fed up when I hear our nationalist brood calling itself revolutionary," Prof. Trudeau, 42, wrote in Cite Libre, a periodical devoted to opinion on social, political and economic issues.

Is separatism a revolution? "My eye," thunders Mr. Trudeau. "It's a counter-revolution, the national socialist counter-revolution."

He says separatists are trying to reverse Quebec's journey toward true democracy.

"The fact is that, at bottom, the separatists despair of ever being able to convince the public of the rightness of their ideas."

"That long work of education and persuasion among the masses undertaken by the unions for many decades, done by the Social Crediters themselves for 30 years—for this the separatists have neither the courage nor the means nor, especially, that respect for the other man's freedom that is essential in under-taking it and leading it to success.

"So they want to abolish freedom and impose a dictatorship of their minority. They are in sole possession of the truth, so others need only get into line. And when things don't go fast enough, they take to illegality and violence."

Mr. Trudeau, at the University of Montreal since 1960, came into prominence in the 1950s with his articles in Cite Libre attacking the government of the late premier Maurice Duplessis.

Educated at the University of Montreal, the London School of Economics and Harvard University, he has spent a decade advocating social reform in Quebec, suggesting at the same time that there is no way to achieve it except by hard work and intelligent planning.

In common with several other university professors of his generation and labor leaders, he has expressed the fear that the rising elite of Quebec, instead of rolling up its sleeves, may go looking for a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

He was a co-author of the Canadian Manifesto published in Cite Libre, calling on Canadians to rise above regional or language loyalties and take a larger view of the country's opportunities and problems. Rejecting the idea of a separate Quebec, the manifesto's authors said "we refuse to let ourselves be locked into a constitutional frame smaller than Canada."

With Mr. Duplessis dead and his Union Nationale administration replaced by a Liberal regime under Jean Lesage, Mr. Trudeau has been aiming his fire at the separatists. He sees them as another bunch of doctrinaires claiming they can put everything right.

In a tone of exasperation and concern, he puts forward the view in Cite Libre that the separatists have come along just when Quebec is beginning to honor such ideas as personal liberty, open discussion, tolerance and fair competition.

Sales Tax Fee Change Affects Few

A finance department official Wednesday reassured retailers that only a few firms would be affected by a cut in the commission they get for collecting provincial sales tax.

Retailers began bombarding the department with telegrams of protest after an official said the commission would be cut to 1 per cent of all tax above $2,500 a year.

It was all a misunderstanding. The reduction of commission from 3 to 1 per cent applies only to tax collections of over $2,500 a month, the finance spokesman explained.

This means only a few very large firms will lose out, he said.

Sorensen Girls Win $130,000

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Two Canadian girls were awarded $130,149.66 by a Thurston County superior court jury here late Wednesday night for the loss of their parents and two sisters in an automobile-truck crash last year.

The jury of six men and six women announced the verdict shortly before midnight, after more than eight hours of deliberation.

Attorneys for the girls—Jill Sorensen, 16, and her sister, Julie, 6—had asked $539,000 damages from Russel V. Blomshine, a Great Falls, Mont., truck driver, and William O. Jacobs, Great Falls, owner of the truck.

Killed when the truck and Sorensen's car collided after the truck ran across a 40-foot highway median strip near here were the girls' father, Owen Sorensen, Vancouver harbor pilot; their mother and two sisters—Joan, 17, and Jane, 11.

The defence claimed the crash was unavoidable. The plaintiffs contended Blomshine was negligent because he was following too closely behind another car.

Cartons a Gyp?

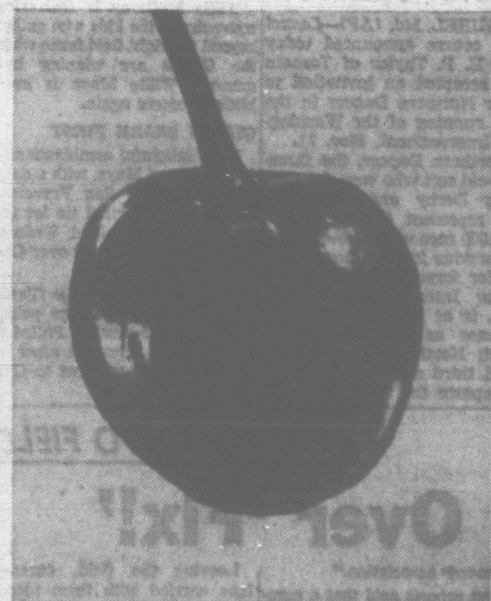

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal food and drug directorate has sent warnings to firms that were found to be selling milk or fruit juices in waxed cartons containing less than full measure. Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Wednesday. The minister was replying to a written question by David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) who referred to a report in the Canadian Consumer magazine that said 13 of 21 brands of milk and fruit juice products sold in waxed cartons didn't give full measure.

Slick Shamrock Passes Puncture Champs' Sails

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

If you like the crisp, exciting feel of money the lesson today calls for betting the bundle on Victoria Shamrocks. On the nose.

This comes from a man who has followed horses that followed horses. I also liked Liston to beat Clay, the Yankees to dump the Dodgers and the Lions to lace Hamilton. So much for the guarantee.

Readers may wonder—when they observe the Shamrocks resting in third place in the Intercity Lacrosse League—how long it has been since y'r agent had a pail of cement fall on his head.

Last year, if you weren't holidaying in Dierblenph, you will recall that the Shamrocks were not the most illustrious athletic organization this side of Turkey Neck, Ky. They reeked of promise. But their performance often had the tangy odor of low tide.

The found-ins who inhabit the dressing room talked a good fight but too often the only fight was in the opposition.

There has not been a startling change in personnel. Skip Chapman, cherubic yet mobile, a New Westminster discard, was acquired to play goal. Dick Crompton, quick and combative, joined the forward troops.

Bill Munroe, with a shot that can tear a hole in a goalkeeper, abandoned the junior division.

Worthy additions all, but enough to cream New Westminster? Sufficient to bend Vancouver, Mann Cup champions, on successive nights?

Donald Ashbee, the noble leader of the Shamrocks, pondered the proposition in the Victoria parlor.

Ashbee was resplendent in beads of perspiration and skin. He wore a slight dint on his nose, courtesy of a looping right hand thrown late in the contest by Peter Black, a rugged Vancouver citizen.

"No," he said, "we haven't changed much. Oh, Gray is playing well, and Jay has started to hit and... aw, they're all playing for me."

Chapman Likes the Dutch Boy...

He dabbed a towel lightly at his beak which was turning a rich magenta.

"There's other things, Chapman means more to us than most people think. Last year we'd be down two or three goals and the other team would rap in five on us. Bloopers. Not this year."

All right. But a few games ago when Vancouver and New Westminster were knocking the sassafras out of you... what happened to Chapman then?

"A few mistakes," Ashbee said. "When somebody would come in from the side, Chapman would stay in the middle of his net instead of shifting right or left to cut the angle."

"But he's a good kid. Takes direction well. I told him and he moved. Nobody's getting a big hole to fire at now."

So the dike has been plugged. Anything else?

"We're giving them more wood," Ashbee said. Wood, in the vernacular of lacrosse, is a fond term for belting people with your curmudgeon. It commands respect. And invites retaliation.

Ashbee's Nose Knows the Score

Late in Wednesday's contest, Ashbee, an expert woodsman, had a conversation with Vancouver's Bill Chisholm. They did not seem to be talking convivially.

"We weren't," Ashbee said.

"He gave me a stick right in the (censored) and I showed mine in his gut. So he says to the ref, 'He hit me! What am I supposed to do? Laugh?'"

Later Ashbee had Vancouver's Black in close quarters as they say at the racetrack. Black wriggled out of Ashbee's fond embrace and when the Victoria leader wasn't looking, caught him with a right that Liston would have been proud of.

Ashbee went down like a balloon freshly lanced. The blow didn't do much for his beak, but that may be beside the point. Straight noses and hard lacrosse are hardly compatible and Ashbee has been around a long time.

Black was invited by the high priests in striped shirts to rest for five minutes. The last word, though, was hardly his.

Black Was Blue, Vancouver Too

While he was contemplating his sins, Ashbee slipped his check and pumped in Victoria's 15th goal.

He was immediately hailed by his minions, delighted to see their general come off the deck and show those Vancouver soandoes how this game should be played.

On his way back to centre, Ashbee walked past the penalty box. Observers saw his lips move, but missed the tune.

What had he said?

"I told Black," Ashbee recalled with relish, "you can't fight and you can't check, you bum."

Neither claim is necessarily valid, but after your team has beaten Vancouver on successive nights, nothing is very wrong either.

It's great to be a winner. Bet often. And early. And remember where you picked up the tip...

'NERVOUS WRECK'

Tension Too Much For Arnie's Caddy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arnold Palmer's caddy quit him Wednesday on the eve of the U.S. Open golf tournament. He said he couldn't stand the pressure.

"I'm a nervous wreck," said Eli Morrison, a 31-year-old Negro who voluntarily blew the dream of most every bag-carryer in the world.

"I thought about it all night. I decided I couldn't do it. All them people pushing and shoving. All that tension out there. I didn't feel up to the race."

Eli was trembling and on the verge of tears when he disclosed his surprising decision. He said he realized he was giving up one of a caddy's most desired assignments and perhaps blowing a $1,000 cheque in case Palmer, a favorite for the title, should win.

Palmer said he didn't understand why Eli left him. "He was okay, and we didn't have any trouble," the Masters champion and world's all-time leading money winner said.

"I figured maybe he saw me play yesterday and decided he'd like to get on another horse,"

Vancouver 11, Shamrocks 15

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Success has a habit of mushrooming. That's a realization that keeps Victoria Shamrocks buoyantly bubbling along in the oft-stormy seas of the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

The Shamrocks knocked more wind out of the sails of league-leading Vancouver Wednesday evening with a slick-passing attack that produced a 15-11 victory for the Irish.

The partisans find it a notable feat because you have to go back at least five years to uncover a Shamrock team with a record showing successive victories over Vancouver.

It may take longer to remember a Victoria team that passed as well as the Rocks did at Memorial Arena Wednesday.

Why the emphasis on passing? Well, it used to be that the Shamrocks banked heavily on hard-nosed checking for most of their limited triumphs in recent times. Now and then an individual would stand the team in good stead.

Also, in those lean years, optimism and confidence used to come and go like used cameras to a pawn shop.

The scarcest commodity was the passing attack, precise and constant, that makes goal scoring appear simple.

Shamrocks showed good pass patterns Tuesday in Kerrisdale, enough to bring Victoria behind for an 11-8 overtime victory against the 1963 Canadian champions.

All But Three Share Point Melon

There were more and better passes Wednesday.

The checking has to be described as mediocre, so it had to be passing that kept the infection of success festering.

All but three players—goalie Skip Chapman, defenceman Bill Spotswood and rookie Rod Kil-duff—got in on the 23-point scoring melon. Tom Collett led the way with three goals. Dick Crompton and Ron Jay each pumped in a pair while the rest were distributed among Jack Showers (a standout), Barry Ashbee, Billy Gray, Ed Kowalyk, Don Ashbee, Jim McNeill, Ranjit Dillon and Jim Watson.

Scoring leader Sid Warwick, Pete Black and Alec Carey packed most of Vancouver's punch. Vancouver also split a 23-point feast, but 13 came off a slick-as-a-whistle power play.

Black set up six goals, Warwick had a five-point night while Carey scored three times.

MUNROE MISSING

Cocher Alex MacKay of Vancouver, it must be acknowledged, still has the best power play in the league. They had eight chances to trot out the odd-man unit, clicked on six. Shamrocks had the advantage only three times, including one five-minute sentence to Black.

The Rocks, playing without regular point man Bill Munroe, scored twice while enjoying the advantage.

Munroe, Victoria's top point-getter, complained of illness Tuesday night. He was hospitalized Wednesday with a severe "flu and a strep throat," but is expected to be back in the lineup for next Wednesday's game with Nanaimo.

ON THE REBOUND: Shamrocks have decided to release Bill Ramberg... The former Vancouver junior played in only two games... Kowalyk's ICLL career total hit 200 points with the goal and one assist he earned... Shamrocks had to go without rookie Ray Beech, out-of-town on holidays... Black drew the five-minute penalty for swinging at Don Ashbee... He dropped Victoria's playing coach with one punch... Gray knocked in one Vancouver goal, which was credited to Gordie Gimple... Crompton, for one, should agree on the value of a passing attack... He lobbed a soft pass to Kil-duff... The Shamrock rookie missed it and it plopped in past a surprised Norm

International Gets 'Dancer'

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Laurel race course announced today that E. P. Taylor of Toronto has accepted an invitation to enter Northern Dancer in the 13th running of the Washington International, Nov. 11.

Northern Dancer, the three-year-old colt who won the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, will represent Canada in the $150,000 race which now stands at six wins for U.S. horses and six for foreign challengers.

The International, a turf race, is at the same 1 1/4-mile distance as the Belmont in which Northern Dancer finished third and lost a chance to capture the triple crown.

Greeks Erupt Over 'Fix!'

ATHENS (AP)—Thousands of fans rioted at a soccer match in this Greek capital Wednesday, clashing with police on the field, ripping up railings and goal posts and setting fire to nets and dressing rooms.

About 25,000 fans surged onto the field shouting that the game between two of the country's top soccer teams—Panathinaikos of Athens and Olympiakos of Piraeus—had been fixed. The game ended in a 1-1 tie.

Club-swinging police battled the fans and drove them from

VICTORY IS GOOD MEDICINE

Sorrowful Sam Ponders Where the Wallop Went

Associated Press

Sam Mele probably wonders where the wallop went.

The Minnesota Twins' manager watched his wrecking crew, home run scourge of the major leagues with 93 circuits, get fenced in by Cleveland pitching for 18 innings Wednesday night as the Indians swept a double-header 3-2 and 5-0.

Pedro Ramos, a former Twin, didn't help Mele's disposition. Pistol Pete, whose gofer ball tendencies prompted his departure from Minnesota two years ago, blanked his old mates on seven hits and belted one of two Cleveland homers in the nightcap.

Max Alvis, whose ninth-inning clout broke up the opener, hit the other.

The defeats dropped Minnesota into fifth place, one percentage point behind the Indians in the American League pennant race.

ORIOLES TAKE LEAD

Baltimore Orioles took the league lead by a game over Chicago when they defeated the White Sox 6-1 behind rookie sensation Wally Bunker. New York Yankees fell 1 1/2 games off the pace, dropping a 4-3 decision to Boston Red Sox in 12 innings.

Detroit Tigers nipped Kansas City Athletics 3-2 on Dick McAuliffe's run-scoring single in the 10th inning and Los Angeles Angels outlasted Washington Senators 5-3.

Minnesota managed two home runs—solo shots by Rich Collins and Frank Kostro Tuesday—while losing three straight to the Indians.

Power failure in Wednesday's twilight opener negated a brilliant pitching performance by Camilo Pascual, who carried a one-hit shutout into the eighth inning. Larry Brown's double, a walk and singles by Vic Davillo and Leon Wagner pulled the Indians into a 2-2 tie.

Alvis' eighth homer, with two out in the ninth, made Pascual a loser for the third time in 12 decisions.

Things are back to normal in Candlestick Park these days.

Willie McCovey is delivering souvenirs to the kids who gather beyond the right field fence when the Giants are winning ball games. Willie Mays is even hitting homers again.

GIANTS SHARE FIRST

That delightful combination of McCovey and Mays, with a dash of Dark, lifted San Francisco Giants into a virtual tie for the National League lead Wednesday with a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

The victory moved the Giants within seven percentage points of the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies, who ran afoul of Billy Williams and lost to Chicago Cubs 9-5.

Just a Friendly Match

NIMES, France (AP)—A friendly soccer match between Nimes Olympic and America de Rio de Janeiro degenerated into a brawl Wednesday and was halted in the 70th minute with Nimes ahead 1-0.

There were several minor incidents during the game, but the big clash followed the recall of a Brazilian goal by referee Rios. A violent fight broke out between the players, and several hundred spectators got in their pokes and jabs.

Leaving the field, enraged fans carried with them pieces of iron railing and parts of the wrecked goal nets. They shook the pieces angrily as they streamed through the streets denouncing the soccer association and crying "Fix! Fix!"

A riot at an international soccer game in Lima, Peru, May 24 killed 328 persons. It was the world's worst sports event disaster. The Lima disorders broke out after a referee nullified a Peruvian goal in a Peru-Argentina pre-Olympic match.

SANTA CLAUS IS HOT IRISH DERBY CHOICE

THE CURRAGH, Ireland (AP)—A field of 30 horses has been declared eligible for the Irish Derby on June 27, including 11 United States-owned colts.

The race, which is the basis for one of this year's Irish Sweepstakes, is at 1 1/4 miles at The Curragh track and carries a purse of $149,730 for the winner.

Hot favorite in the pre-race betting at even money is British-owned, Irish-trained Santa Claus, already winner of the Irish 2,000 Guineas and the Epsom Derby.

Vancouver Puck Interest Soars

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver has suddenly become a hot spot in the hockey world, says Max McNab, general manager of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Back from attending National Hockey League meetings in Montreal, McNab said Wednesday: "Every-one down east is watching Vancouver."

Canucks finished a dismal last in the six-team WHL last season. But then, said McNab, along came Stafford Smythe's offer to build a 20,000-seat coliseum in Vancouver.

And even more directly affecting Canucks was provision of three new players by New York Rangers and a Detroit promise to help too.

Canucks will get a new coach this season and he'll come either

Canucks Win In Slow Time

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers and Bruce Kidd, Canada's hopes for gold medals in the 1964 Olympics in Japan, won handily but failed to reach their anticipated marks in a track meet here Wednesday night.

Crothers won the quarter-mile in 47.6 seconds. Crothers was aiming at a 47.3 mark.

Kidd won the three-mile event in 13:40.4. He was aiming for 13:30.

EX PARK CONTRACT AWARDED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Skipping the business of public tenders, directors of the Pacific National Exhibition Wednesday awarded a $1,100,000 contract for construction at Exhibition Park race track.

Dominion Construction Company, which had been active in the preliminary planning, will build a new clubhouse and grandstand facilities. The figures do not include an estimated $150,000 to $200,000 for expanded track facilities.

A spokesman said tenders would have meant a loss of 10 weeks and the PNE wants the new setup ready for the 1965 season.

Court Fight Planned

VANCOUVER — A newly-formed society plans to launch court action to have the 30-year lease of Exhibition Park race track to the B.C. Jockey Club declared illegal.

Ben Morley, spokesman for the Hastings Park Restoration Society, says his group believes the city council and the Pacific National Exhibition were not legally competent to negotiate the lease, as they did.

He did not elaborate. The Jockey Club got the track on a sub-lease from the PNE after the latter got an extension of its own lease from 1975 to 1995.

The Jockey Club plans a $1,300,000 renovation of the track.

Morley told the Vancouver and District Labour Council the society hopes to launch suit against the city in the matter shortly.

Uplands Loses Battle But Wins Fairway War

Gorge Vale won the final battle but Uplands has won the 1964 Inter-Club Golf League war.

Uplands belters closed out the league schedule Wednesday night by dropping a 5-4 decision to their Gorge rivals at the Uplands course but a pair of cool veterans salvaged enough points at their home course to give Uplands the title for a second straight year.

Frank Scroggs and Gordie Fellow fired some great shots in the rain to score the only singles victories as the champions, finished with a 33½ margin over Gorge in the six-match schedule.

In Wednesday's other match, Colwood clinched third place by defeating Victoria Golf Club 5-4 at Oak Bay.

Scroggs toured the front nine in a fine two-under-par 33 and finished even with par as he downed Bob Fleming 3 and 1. His playing partner, Eric Hibberson, gave city and provincial amateur champion Bill Wakeham a battle down to the wire before Wakeham, also even with par, grabbed a one-up decision. However, the Uplands pair gained a half on the four-ball competition.

Pellow, steady and confident.

GORGE VALE'S AT UPLANDS: 4 Bill Wakeham defeated Eric Hibberson 1 up; Bob Fleming lost to Frank Scroggs 3 and 1; Four-ball halved; Gordie Jones lost to Gordie Pellow 2 and 1; Pellow and Hunt won four-ball, 2 and 1.

AT DONALDSON: defeated Gary Smith 4 and 3; Dave Easthorpe defeated Eric Wright 1 up; Donaldson and Easthorpe won four-ball, 2 and 1.

COLWOOD 5 AT VICTORIA: 4 Laurie Kerr lost to Bill McCall 5 and 3; George Andrews and George Bigelow halved; McCall and Bigelow won four-ball, 2 and 1.

AT PAINTER: defeated Paul Trapp 5 and 3; Joe Evans defeated Roy Chappell 4 and 3; Painter and Evans won four-ball, 2 and 1.

Bill Court defeated Doug Munro 1 up; Ricky Kerr lost to Cliff Horwood 2 and 1; four-ball halved.

fired a one-over 71 as he defeated Gordie Jones 2 and 1 and shared a 2-and-1 triumph with Bob Hunt in the four ball. Hunt, six up with seven holes to play, barely held out against a charging Noel Pumfrey to finish all square with the youthful Gorge ace.

Donaldson and Dave Easthorpe got the maximum three points for Gorge as Donaldson downed Gary Smith and Easthorpe bested Eric Wright.

Vic Painter, Joe Evans and pro Bill Court paced Colwood. Big surprise at Oak Bay was the easy manner in which Bill McCall fashioned a victory over six-time city champion Laurie Kerr. McCall won by a 3-and-3 count.

'Funny' Puzzle For Grid Brass

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Canadian Football League reconvenes here Friday in an effort to settle two knotty problems that have been plaguing them for several seasons—"funny Canadians" and an assistant commissioner.

They will also designate the site for the 1965 Grey Cup game after receiving an impressive submission from the Montreal Junior Board of Trade Friday noon. In anticipation of the Alouettes proposed 40,000 seat stadium, the CFL was almost certain to award the game to Montreal for the first time during the modern era of pro football in Canada.

The owners are agreed that the "funny Canadians" (players who are essentially Americans but qualify to play as Canadian) situation is getting out of hand in two areas — imports who become naturalized Canadians and players with a remote Canadian lineage who grew up in the United States. However, they are very much at odds on solutions to the problem.

They also agree that there is a need for a high-powered public relations type, but have been unable to designate his duties, salary and location. Apparently they are seeking a man who would be a business assistant to commissioner Sydney Haller whose primary function would be to find new revenue for the league. It is likely he'll be located in Toronto.

TELEVISION INTEREST
 Television is another subject which will be discussed at length. The CFL is interested in two major areas of TV revenue — Canada and the United States. The eastern CFL owners are expected to revise their thinking on how Ever try "slow" gin?

(And we don't mean Sloe Gin.)

"Slow" gin and Sloe Gin sound the same. But they couldn't be more different. Sloe Gin, flavoured with sloes, is on the sweet side. Our "slow" gin—Burnett's Sterling—is very, very dry.

Why do we call it a "slow" gin? Because we make it slowly. Instead of being mass-produced in oceans—like most other gins on the market—Sterling is distilled in small, unhurried batches.

What sets the slow pace is our little English copper Pot Stills, which are more than 100 years old. By modern standards, they are miniatures—and slowpokes.

But as long as you like the way they make gin, we're in no hurry to change them. Look at the one on the left. We brought it here from England in the 1920's, when we imported Burnett's complete distillery. The men who mind our old Pot Stills know them as a good cook knows her seasoned pots and pans. They'd never forgive us if we decided to retire these old-timers. Switching to modern, monster stills would save us trouble, time and money. But our Sterling Gin would no longer be a "slow" gin. And you'd be quick to tell us that it didn't taste the same.

BIRTH CONTROL

"The Roman Catholic Church is breaking it with its talk about the rhythm method."

Catholic spokesmen, in fact, puncture a widespread belief that their church, which opposes artificial aids to birth control, is against changing the law.

"Any law on the books which is not observed is not a good thing," says Rev. Frank Stone, head of the Catholic Information Centre in Toronto.

"It is not a good law because it infringes on private morality," says Rev. James Roberts, a member of the matrimonial tribunal of Vancouver's Catholic archdiocese. "The Catholic Church by no means intends to foist on the general public its own methods to achieve responsible parenthood."

ABSTAIN ON VOTE

However, Quebec delegates abstained when the Voice of Women voted for repeal of the birth control law at its national meeting May 31 at Banff, Alta., on the ground the subject was "too delicate" in Quebec.

The National Council of Women of Canada voted the following day in Hamilton for repeal of the law, although the delegate for the Montreal council dissented on the ground that it might disturb French-English relations.

Confusion about the Catholic stand on the law—"certainly it doesn't do for laws to be on the books which are not respected," says Archbishop Anthony Jordan of the Edmonton Catholic archdiocese—is reflected in a Halifax scientist's statement to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. He said one source of resentment against Quebec is the federal government's failure to amend the birth control law in deference to that province.

DECADE BEHIND

Section 150 of the Criminal Code is the law that keeps Canada "10 years behind" its neighbors, in the words of Dr. Mary Calderone, medical director of the Planned Parenthood Federation of the United States, which operates more than 150 of some 600 birth control clinics in the U.S. The law says:

"Everyone commits an offence who knowingly, without lawful justification or excuse, offers to sell, advertises, publishes an advertisement of or has for sale or disposal any means, instructions, medicine, drug or article intended or represented as a method of preventing conception or causing abortion or miscarriage."

A subsection says there can be no conviction if the defendant establishes that "the public good was served"—a tougher version of a clause that before a 1949 amendment required the defendant to establish only that his action "might be to the public good."

Enforcement of the law is up to the provinces. The maximum penalty on conviction is two years imprisonment. But despite apparent widespread violation there have been only two notable prosecutions, one of them successful.

The most celebrated was the prosecution of social worker Dorothea Palmer in 1936 for distributing birth control information and contraceptives among married women in the predominantly Catholic Ottawa suburb of Eastview. The trial in magistrate's court lasted on and off from October until the following March, when Miss Palmer was acquitted on the ground that she might have been serving the public good. The Ontario Court of Appeal upheld the verdict.

CONVICTED IN 1962

Twenty-five years later in Toronto, pharmaceutical distributor Harold S. Fine was fined $50 on each of two charges of advertising and offering contraceptives for sale. The magistrate found Mr. Fine "sincere in his desire to pass on information which he thought would serve the public good" but under the 1949 change in the Criminal Code heavy onus was on the accused to show that he had in fact served the public good.

Despite the 1962 conviction, private, public and commercial enterprises are issuing with impunity instructions and advice on birth control, contraceptive appliances, chemical preparations and drugs.

"That law is being violated hundreds of thousands of times

S. African Envoy Baited

OXFORD, England (AP) — Fist fights broke out at Oxford as 300 student demonstrators gathered to protest South Africa's racial policies.

Dr. Carel de Wet, South African ambassador, was half dragged from the Oxford University Conservative Association quarters to his car by a 10-man police bodyguard. He had just finished speaking to the association.

The speech was interrupted by chants of "free Mandela" and "go home, de Wet" from the street outside.

Nelson Mandela has been sentenced to life in prison in South Africa for sabotage.

On the way out of Oxford, de Wet's car stopped because of a flat tire. Some students said they had stuck a match into the tire valve.

Students in pursuing cars jumped onto the ambassador's limousine and tried to drag the chauffeur out. But police arrive and arrested four students for breach-of-the peace. Other students tried to invade the police station, but the police drove them off.

De Wet got away to London after the tire was changed.

U.S. Aids Kenya

NAIROBI (Reuters) — The United States agreed Tuesday to grant Kenya aid worth $1,138,900 to help create a national youth service. The service of 7,000 youths headed by National Youth Leader Josiah Kuriuki is being formed to train Kenya youth in community service and development work.

Water Service Bid Approved

NORTH COWICHAN—A petition from Somenos Lake residents requesting that the city of Duncan water system be extended to their area was endorsed by municipal council, Wednesday.

The proposed two-mile extension from the city's water system on Sherman Road to the Somenos Lake district has been estimated to cost $40,000.

It is expected that the city of Duncan will finance the project and the North Cowichan municipality will act as collecting agency.

The extension was requested by the residents because of the concern over the danger of contamination from the lake water.

Barring Inspector Costs $100

NANAIMO (CP)—The Nanaimo manager of a produce firm has been fined $100 for barring a government inspector from examining the company's records.

Peter Grootendorst of Pacific Produce Company was convicted of obstructing A. J. Darby, district supervisor of poultry inspection division, Canadian department of agriculture.

Mr. Darby obtained a search warrant, returned to the produce firm's office with a policeman and went through the books.

Pacific Produce also was charged with acting as a wholesaler of eggs contrary to regulations.

Negligence Trial Opens Today

NANAIMO—The trial of a Campbell River man, charged with criminal negligence, impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident, opened in Assize Court today before Mr. Justice H. A. Maclean.

William Henry Walker has pleaded not guilty to the charges, which arose from the death of pedestrian Charles Simpson in an accident at Campbell River, Feb. 6.

Indian Land Sought for Pool

DUNCAN—Will Dobson, chairman of the swimming pool committee of the Duncan Rotary Club, will be invited to attend the next meeting of the Cowichan Indian Band Council to discuss the club's proposed community project.

In a letter to the council, Mr. Dobson asked the council to consider participating in the project by permitting the use of a half-acre of Cowichan Indian Reserve land to the south of the city parking lot.

The council tabled its decision pending further discussion with Mr. Dobson.

Allied Tribes to Meet Sunday

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indian Band chief Mike Underwood has advised council members that the next meeting of the Southern Vancouver Island Allied Tribes will be held at the local Indian recreation hall Sunday at 2 p.m.

It was decided at the meeting to permit the North Cowichan municipality to use the garbage disposal area adjacent to Fairbridge Road for an annual fee.

Line Replacement Next Year

NORTH COWICHAN—Residents of Howe Road in Chemainus were informed Wednesday that replacement of the water line to the area may be included in next year's budget. Complaints of low water pressure in the area have been received by council.

Islanders Chosen for 4-H Trip

Nine Greater Victoria youngsters are among a group from Southern Vancouver Island who have been chosen to attend the annual provincial 4-H Club week in New Denver, July 13 to 17.

Twelve youngsters will be making the trip. Ken Jameson, Duncan district agriculturist and southern island 4-H supervisor, selected 11 from 20 applicants who wished to make the journey.

One candidate for a $700 National Exhibition scholarship made up the final number.

The 12, and their 4-H clubs are: Wendy Baker, Saanich Jersey Club, the scholarship candidate; Reg Hoole, Saanich Jersey; Bonnie Reimer, Saanich Ayrshire; Sharon McCarthy, Saanich Holstein; Kris Andrews and Selena Kelly, Saanich Home Arts; Don Alberg, 3S Beef; Bruce Wilson, South Malahat Tractor; Don McDowell, Luxton Garden; David Tattam and Gladys Roberts, Cowichan Holstein, and Richard Skeete, Cobble Hill sheep club.

SEX EDUCATION UNDER STUDY

NANAIMO—The Nanaimo Education Council announced Tuesday methods and problems of teaching sex education in the school and the home would be under study by the council this year.

Council chairman A. W. Gascoyne said the findings of the study would be made public early next year.

In the fall, council will sponsor a public discussion on remedial reading.

Representatives of the parent-teacher council, Nanaimo District Teachers Association and the school board as well as a psychiatrist and a specialist in the field, will be featured on the panel.

THREE TOP STUDENTS received prizes at Cowichan Senior Secondary School Awards Day. John Morton, left, who last month was named winner of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. university scholarship, was chosen "Scholar of the Year."

Michael Martin, centre, was named "Athlete of the Year," and Colin Stafford, right, received the "Citizen of the Year" cup, won last year by John Morton who was also president of the 1963-64 Students' Council at CSSS. All three are 1964 graduates.

Planned Development Proposed

DUNCAN—Planned development of the Somenos area of Cowichan Indian Reserve, adjacent to Duncan was proposed here by town planner R. A. Williams of Vancouver.

Mr. Williams, of Rawson & Williams, town planning consultants, addressed members of the Cowichan Indian band council Tuesday night.

Mr. Williams had been previously engaged to investigate the possibility of developing several acres of Indian Reserve land located between Trunk Road and the Cowichan River on the north and south, and between the Trans-Canada Highway and the E & N Railway on the east and west.

A report on the consultant's suggestions and recommendations had been discussed by the council at last month's meeting.

He pointed out that haphazard leasing of the property could lead to financial losses for the Indian owners as well as retard development of the land for use by larger businesses.

Municipal Area Vote in Winter

Backers of a scheme to create a new municipality in Langford-Colwood areas hope to put the issue to a vote before Christmas.

"We expect to be ready for a vote early in the new year, or possibly by Christmas," said John Williams of 2987 Glen Lake today.

Mr. Williams, secretary-treasurer of a six-member study group pursuing the question of incorporation, said the proposed boundaries of the new municipality generally follow the boundaries of the Langford and Colwood fire protection districts as far south as Latoria Road and including Albert Head.

He corrected an earlier report that the Langford-Colwood-Metchosin community planning area was involved. That area includes 36 square miles. The committee is concerned only with about 12 square miles, which does not include the Metchosin area.

Mr. Williams said in interview that the population involved is estimated at 13,000.

He said the planning group which was formed at a public meeting in March, has been studying all aspects of the move and now will ask former deputy minister of municipal affairs B.C. Bracewell to confirm its findings.

"So far our estimates of revenues and running costs have proven encouraging," said Mr. Williams. He thought one of the prime major expenses would be a municipal centre to include a police station, administration unit, and public works department. Such a structure would be eligible for federal assistance as a winter works project.

He said the next move will be to hold a series of meetings outlining benefits of incorporation to residents.

START PETITION

"If the reaction is favorable we then would circulate a petition asking the provincial government to approve a petition. This could be circulated by November," Mr. Williams added.

It would be circulated among property owners only and to be successful the signatures of 60 per cent of the property owners must be obtained. If a plebiscite is then held, only property owners would have a vote.

The plebiscite would be successful if 60 per cent of those who cast ballots favor formation of a municipality.

Prowler Launched Policeman On 25-Year Career in Saanich

John Rickerby-Hamilton might never have joined the Saanich police force, if it hadn't been for a burglar. He made three tries for a police career before finally, on the fourth attempt and aided by the burglar, he made it.

He will retire at the end of this month as deputy chief of the Saanich police department.

Before he joined the Saanich force, in 1939, he had been a motorcycle salesman in England, a garage mechanic in the United States, and a bush camp worker, cafe owner and truck driver in Canada.

But through all those years he had wanted to be a policeman.

Long Waiting List

He tried to become one first in Newcastle-on-Tyne, his home town in England. There was a long waiting list and by the time he was called he had decided to come to Canada.

He worked in logging and construction outfits, moved to the United States and then returned to Canada where he tried to join the RCMP. He was turned down because he was married by then.

For a while he was back in construction and then, in 1934, he joined the B.C. Provincial Police. He stayed in it three years and then got out to go into the restaurant business in Port Alberni.

He did well, opened several restaurants but then had to sell out because his wife became seriously ill. For a year he lived in Nanaimo and then moved to Saanich.

House Ransacked

That's when he encountered the burglar. His house was entered and ransacked one night while he was out. Saanich police investigated and, in the course of talking, one of the officers found out that Deputy Hamilton had police experience.

He suggested the deputy go to work temporarily as a Saanich policeman. First night on the job, Deputy Hamilton arrested a man for vagrancy.

When the prowler was investigated he turned out to be the burglar who had ransacked Hamilton's home, and the temporary job lasted 25 years.

There is only one other man who was on the force at that time who is still there—Chief W. A. Pearson. Together, Chief Pearson and Deputy Hamilton have moulded the Saanich force into one of the most admired police departments in this area.

Main Concern

Their main concern has been to instill into the men that they always behave civilly even to the criminals they catch.

Says Deputy Hamilton: "We tell them that they are police officers who have to enforce the law and they're not judges. They should treat everyone in the same way."

He admits that it isn't always easy for policemen to behave in this way because they are not always dealing with the nicest people.

But he insists that it can be done. He can prove it, too. He receives Christmas cards from men he arrested and had sent to jail years ago.

And he says it isn't only a question of being polite. It pays off too in police work. "If people respect you because you respect them, they'll help you. And in all my years on the Saanich force I've learned that we depend on the public."

Boy Given 'Worthless' Cancer Serum

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons, accepting the results of tests made by French specialists, said Wednesday there is every reason to believe a serum manufactured by a self-taught French biochemist as a cure for leukemia is "therapeutically and scientifically worthless."

The college made its views known at a press conference less than 24 hours after a 34-year-old Montreal leukemia victim was given an injection of the serum, known as anablast.

Dr. Albert Royer, who administered the serum to the son of Montreal restaurateur René Guynemer, told the conference there was no change in the child's condition following the injection. He said it was too soon in any case for any kind of change to occur.

DESPERATE EFFORT

The serum was prepared by Gaston Naessens, brought here from France by Mr. Guynemer in what he said was a desperate effort to save the life of his son.

Under conditions laid down by Mr. Naessens, the boy is to receive a daily injection for the next 30 days. The injections will be interrupted for 10 days and then resumed for another 15 days.

"This plan does not involve any major danger and it will be followed unless conditions of the child necessitate changes," said Dr. Royer. "We have been asked to discontinue gradually the treatments we have been giving. We reserve the right to resume the treatments if necessary."

Dr. Roger Dufresne, spokesman for the College of Physicians and Surgeons, said the fact that permission had been granted to inject the Guynemer youngster does not mean that Quebec medical authorities recognize any curative powers in the product.

"It was strictly for humanitarian reasons that this permission was granted at a time when we had only scientific opinions about anablast," said Dr. Dufresne. "We now have every reason to believe that the preparations in question has no therapeutic value."

Vancouver Island Revisited

NANAIMO—The handsome black Tokyo-based freighter Ritsuyo Maru has ended her three-week drowse at anchor off this rich, busy and at the moment slightly nervous city. At 5 p.m. Tuesday, Captain T. Nishikawa pointed his 5,234-tonner for Vancouver, where she will top off a partial loading of Harmac pulp with general cargo.

Alberni was to have been her next port of call. But a ship can afford to lie idle in harbor only so long, and with Harmac's west coast sister mill strikebound, there seemed no point in further waiting.

Here in our island's bustling hub, one man with a good job and money in the bank has cancelled his order for a $3,000 boat-motor-trailer combination. He isn't precisely anticipating lean days but better, maybe, to soft-pedal the spending until the Alberni strike is over.

Assessively independent though the island centres are, they are all to greater or less degree influenced in their economic health by the state of the forest industry. But Alberni and Nanaimo bleed a drop or two.

So the impression we get, talking to this man and that on bustling Front Street or down along the waterfront, is that for a while at least, Nanaimo's free spending may be tempered by a touch of caution.

But only by a touch. Across the water, Macmillan Bloedel and Powell River's giant Harmac mill is pouring its vapor-columns into a grey sky, and a quarter-mile away, a new high-rise is mounting toward its eventual 16 stories. North, south and west, the subdivisions continue to gulp land which was empty when I was a kid in these parts.

Nanaimo is drastically altered from those days when coal, not lumber, was king, and the black-face miners came off shift to keep British Columbia's largest concentration of beer parlors booming.

There are still beer parlors aplenty, and the grim old HBC bastion still frowns above its cannons at the Indian race-crew which is paddling its lean dugout along the Protection Island lee. But cocktail lounges have been added, and they're planning a boat basin to shelter a portion of Nanaimo's swarming work and pleasure craft, and an inlet is to be filled so that the seambusting business section will have more room.

A good many fishermen winter here. An increasing number of convention planners turn their eyes this way.

The pace is brisk. Below me as I write this, a fat CPR ferry has landed one set of passengers, taken on another, and cleared for the mainland. A trim seaplane has set down from a charter flight, and another is readying for takeoff.

Except for the minor uneasiness, that occasional glance over the shoulder in the directions of the Alberni, Nanaimo appears to be doing very well indeed.

Among its 28,000 residents who form part of an impressive trading area population of 110,000 are those who wouldn't agree.

Coal will come back some day, say those who have never learned to trust a prosperity based so heavily on forest wealth. There's as much coal under the ground as ever came out; and a good thing for Nanaimo. Coal, they insist, was staid.

Away from the bustling downtown, Nanaimo has its share of families on relief, and its unemployed young men.

As everywhere in Canada, a flag argument is easy to come by. I tried to promote one with Harbor Master John Dunham in his office under the shadow of the Bastion.

"Here," he said, with a nod toward the 30-foot Harbor Commission patrol launch, "we fly the Blue Ensign."

The launch works 10 hours a day, six days a week, in summer, and an eight-hour day in winter. During 1963, 299 deep-sea ships loaded pulp at Harmac's twin berths, and lumber and other cargo at the Assembly Wharf which juts from the Nanaimo shoreline.

In lumber alone, the freighters take away from seven to eight hundred thousand board feet of Island timber each trip.

While John Dunham gave me the picture, the Comet, Liberia-registered and manned by a Greek crew, was paying her second visit in less than a month. This call, the tough old Second World War Liberty is loading a million and a quarter feet for U.K. market.

Among the longshoremen swarming over her were two gangs dispatched by their union local from Alberni.

Ritsuyo, the Japanese carrier that cleared from Nanaimo Tuesday, is swinging Vancouver cargo aboard with her goalpost booms today, and those Alberni gangs aren't currently in much demand at home.

Indian Carvers Working On Totem Poles for Uvic

Two Tsimshian totem poles now being fashioned by Indian carvers at Thunderbird Park will be presented to the University of Victoria some time this fall.

They will stand on the campus but the actual site has not yet been chosen.

First of the poles, now almost completed, is a 55-foot copy of the Kitwancool totem which once stood at Kitwancool on the Skeena River. The second, standing 50 feet high, will be a copy of the Nass totem from the Nass River.

Tony Hunt, 21-year-old grandson of the late Chief Mungo Martin, is assisting his father, Henry Hunt, in carving the totems.

Hailed as a carver in the family tradition, Tony will give an exhibition of his work in the T. Eaton Company store here July 6-11.

Announcement of the location of a new liquor store in Saanich should be made shortly, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

Negotiations are under way to acquire a site, he said. "I think the people of Saanich will be well pleased within the next short while."

He declined to tell the location. However, it is understood the Liquor Control Board has run into a zoning problem, which indicates the site is in the McKenzie Avenue area.

A Saanich official said if the store were in an existing shopping centre the LCB would have to get council's approval, but there would be no need for rezoning.

If the store were anywhere else, it would have to be rezoned, and this would involve public hearings.

The LCB earlier was investigating both the McKenzie Avenue area and Royal Oak shopping centre.

A-G's Order Releases 200 Drunks From Jail

COULD BE END

New Deal Must Come For Buses

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady today said that bus service here will end automatically when the current franchises run out in 1967 unless some arrangement to continue them is made.

He agreed with an opinion by Vancouver city solicitor Russell Baker, who warned his council that if the franchises are not renewed or a new arrangement provided, B.C. Hydro could simply stop running its buses.

"That's quite correct," commented Mr. O'Grady in a telephone interview from Harrison Hot Springs where he is attending a law society convention.

"When the franchises expire the government's obligation ceases and the municipalities never have had any obligation in a legal sense to keep the transit buses running."

POWER TO FORCE

Before the government took over the privately-owned B.C. Electric, the Public Utilities Commission had the power to force continuation of the transit system as a public necessity.

But the government-owned B.C. Hydro which succeeded the BCE has been taken out of the PUC's control. So there is no tribunal to compel the government to keep the buses running beyond the franchise expiry.

Mr. O'Grady was surprised to learn that a month ago the cabinet passed an order-in-council rescinding a 1948 decree that the PUC must consider the overall financial position of BCE when hearing tariff change applications.

"That's very foxy of them, isn't it," he commented.

INTENT IMPORTANT

"But I doubt it alters the position of the contracts (the BCE municipal franchise agreements) because what's important is the intent of the parties when they made the agreement."

Mr. O'Grady maintains the franchises were based on the new-rescinded 1948 order-in-council because they obviously contemplated that overall profits of the electricity and gas branches of BCE would absorb transit losses.

A new order-in-council permits the PUC to hear the present application of B.C. Hydro for almost doubling its bus fares but prevents it from looking at electricity and gas profits.

BUSINESS CONCERNED

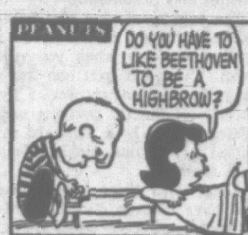

Meanwhile, there were signs that the business community as well as municipal councils and bus passengers were agitated by the proposed increase.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce's public affairs group scheduled a meeting for Tuesday, to which transit officials were invited, to investigate the proposal and make recommendations to the chamber's directors.

Stripping of overburden has already begun.

The Mt. Washington group is aiming at September production for a 100-ton mill which is to be erected on the property as rapidly as possible.

C. W. S. Tremaine, general manager of Mt. Washington Milling Co. Ltd., which will operate the mill for Mt. Washington Copper and Cumberland Mining Company Ltd., said that work on the mill site is all but complete.

I DON'T KNOW... THAT'S KIND OF A HARD QUESTION.

I'M WORRIED THAT I'M NOT SMART ENOUGH TO BE A HIGHBROW, AND YET I DON'T WANT TO END UP A LOWBROW.

WHO DO YOU HAVE TO LIKE TO BE A MIDDLEBROW?

Improperly Charged In Vancouver

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today ordered the release of up to 200 drunks from Oakalla Jail.

They had been improperly charged by the City of Vancouver.

The action follows a ruling Monday by Supreme Court Chief Justice J. O. Wilson quashing the conviction of Mrs. Winnifred Johnson, jailed by Magistrate Douglas Hume March 9 for 20 days.

The judge said no information of the charge had been given to the court before her plea was taken.

Normal procedure is that details of the charge are read to the court.

Mr. Bonner said an investigation by his department showed the Vancouver city prosecutor's office had been skipping this formality for "some duration."

IMMEDIATE ACTION

As a result he ordered the director of corrections to allow immediate release of Oakalla prisoners jailed on charges involving intoxication in Vancouver.

Mr. Bonner said up to 200 prisoners were to be freed.

Their sentences range from a few days to several months.

"In the circumstances these people would be entitled to be released if they made some application," he said.

"It could probably be demonstrated they were illegally detained."

Mr. Bonner said he was waiving the necessity for any appeal to the courts, although any resulting civil claims would be up to the individuals involved.

He said the Vancouver Prosecutor's Office had agreed with his decision and had corrected its procedure for charging drunks.

Bylaw Clears Way to Buy Road Link

An expropriation bylaw was to be introduced today to lay the groundwork for negotiations by Victoria council to purchase right of way for extending Finlayson Avenue.

A special city council meeting was to give three readings to the bylaw aimed at acquiring an 80-foot strip through the centre of a 6.3-acre field recently purchased by Chevrolet-Oldsmobile dealer Newell Morrison.

The property runs from Douglas Street through to Burnside opposite the present dead end of Finlayson at Douglas.

Mr. Morrison plans to relocate his car agency in new buildings to be erected on the property later this year.

Passage of an expropriation bylaw is council's usual first step before negotiating large purchases because it clearly sets out the city's intentions and enables it to take control of the land regardless of disputes over price.

Expropriation is seldom carried out but if there is no voluntary agreement the price is arbitrated.

Also to be considered at the afternoon meeting were proposals for: extending residential zoning into the light industrial area of James Bay; and construction of a 25-storey apartment block on Blanshard Street opposite the former B.C. Electric building.

Referendum Vote Light

Despite a fast start, voting on Victoria's $3,387,000 capital budget referendum appeared headed for a light turnout today.

Indications pointed to a turnout of about 4,000 people, barring a late rush, city returning officer Frank Hunter said this morning.

This would be less than 25 per cent of the total eligible to vote.

Polls are open until 8 p.m. at the Victoria Ballroom, northwest corner of Pandora and Government Street.

VICTORIA BARRISTER Donald J. Lawson became head of the B.C. section, Canadian Bar Association, today when he was elected vice-president at the annual meeting in Harrison Hot Springs. Born and raised in Victoria, Mr. Lawson graduated in law at Osgoode Hall, University of Toronto, and served in the RCNVR from 1941 to 1945. He has been a partner in the Victoria law firm of Crease and Co. since 1946 and is campaign chairman for this year's United Appeal fund. He is married with three children and lives at 2595 Lansdowne.

Rock Blasted For 9-Floor High Rise

Rock blasting for another high rise apartment building near the Empress Hotel is underway. Peter Hartnell, operator of the Thunderbird Motel, today said the new building would be nine stories high and would include two floors of car parking as well as 83 suites.

Site is a sloping property with frontage on both Douglas Street and Blanshard near their junction at the northwest corner of Beacon Hill Park.

(Excavation for another high-rise, a 16-storey apartment hotel block, is underway at Douglas and Humboldt on lower ground and the two buildings, when completed, will straddle the Empress' laundry and Crystal Garden.)

"Cost of the project is $1,000,000," said Mr. Hartnell. "We plan to open the building June 1, 1965. We may add a rooftop restaurant but we haven't decided that yet."

Contractor for the project is Patterson Construction.

Dr. J. G. Patterson and Mr. Hartnell are principals of Carmel Holdings Ltd., the development company.

The building will be named the Queen Victoria.

Architects are Peterson and Lester.

Ask The Times

Q—What is the difference between responsible and representative government as related to Canadian history? M.K.

A—Representative government, granted first to Nova Scotia in 1788, created an elected assembly to advise the governor and his appointed executive council.

The executive was not chosen by the assembly, nor were they responsible to it for their policies.

Responsible government began in 1848 when a newly-elected Nova Scotia assembly passed a non-confidence vote against the executive. The executive council resigned three days later and Premier J. B. Uniacke was asked to form a government or to hold an election.

Later adopted in other provinces and on the federal level, responsible government depends entirely on tradition. When the House of Commons or a provincial legislature passes a non-confidence motion against a government, the executive council (cabinet) is expected to resign to allow someone else to form a government or to hold an election.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve controversies of local problems. We will attempt to put a value on old notes, stories or articles. These should be submitted to a reader.

TOPICS of the DAY

An 11-month-old child pulled down a television set on herself this morning, but escaped unharmed.

City police took Kristine Hunter, 140 Simcoe, to Saint Joseph's Hospital for a check-up.

The television set was a portable model on a stand, and the child apparently pulled the whole thing down while playing.

Arnold White blew his horn at the Salvation Army instead of with them, and today paid the price of his sins.

White, who lives at 1206 Fairfield, was fined $20 in city police court for unnecessary use of his car horn.

Court was told White drove alongside a Salvation Army gathering on Douglas Street, and blew his horn five times.

He said he did it just for a joke. "Not very funny," commented the magistrate.

A resolution commending the B.C. and federal governments on their negotiations to restore 110-year-old Craigflower Manor as a historic site was passed at a meeting of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Tuesday night.

Letters of thanks are being sent to Premier Bennett and federal Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing.

"We are particularly interested in this project because of the friendly association between neighboring Indians and the farm since its early days," said Esther F. Tervo, corresponding secretary of the Indian Arts Society.

Negotiations were opened last week with a telegram from Mr. Laing to B.C. deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace offering to share costs equally.

Bill Scott, Victoria's light-house philosopher whose court appearances have been many, confessed today he's getting tired of it.

He pleaded not guilty in city police court to going through a red light.

"Over the years, I've spent $3,000 in fines to prove some of our police are wrong, and I'm getting weary of it," he told Magistrate William Ostler.

Case will be tried July 2.

There will be no letter carrier delivery or wicket service at Victoria Post Office on the July 1 Dominion Day holiday.

Street letter box collections will be made in the evening only and holiday service will be in effect for special delivery letters, mail receipts and dispatches.

The 6th Arbutus (St. Paul's) Cub and Scout group will hold its annual garden party in Bulfinch Park Saturday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. There will be stalls and games for young and old.

SHRINE CIRCUS PLAYING HERE

Arena Turned Into 'Big Top'

Memorial Arena began buzzing with roustabouts early this morning as the Shrine Circus moved into the Memorial Arena.

Trapezes were hung from rapidly-erected rigging poles to await testing by the artists.

The highwire was strung above the concrete floor for the Triska Troupe, but no safety net was put below.

On the arena floor green rubber matting was laid down and three large rings arranged in place.

It will be in these rings that most of the 30 acts will take place.

FILLED WITH COLOR

Trained poodles, trick bicycle acrobats, chimpanzees and clowns will fill the arena floor with color.

All three rings are needed for one act—the palomino dancing horses of Trevor Bale.

The entire circus travels in trailers, including approximately 15 tons of elephants.

One-act-Kellers Jungle Killers—suffered engine trouble on the 1,600-mile trip up here from San Diego and was not expected to appear at the first show this afternoon.

This afternoon's matinee was scheduled for 4 o'clock, with an 8 o'clock performance this evening. The 4 and 8 o'clock shows will be repeated Friday.

Open-pit mining and stockpiling of ore at Mount Washington Copper Company's property near Courtenay is expected to get under way shortly, company officials said in Vancouver today.

Stripping of overburden has already begun.

The Mt. Washington group is aiming at September production for a 100-ton mill which is to be erected on the property as rapidly as possible.

C. W. S. Tremaine, general manager of Mt. Washington Milling Co. Ltd., which will operate the mill for Mt. Washington Copper and Cumberland Mining Company Ltd., said that work on the mill site is all but complete.

TAKING A STROLL before Shriners' Circus at Memorial Arena today are Alice, left, and Bonnie Bale, 10 years old. Alice is one-third of the 15 tons of elephants with the circus. Bonnie rides a pony in her father's dancing horse act.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Webster of Robson, B.C., announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Loreen Carole, to Mr. Frank George Baskerville-Bridges, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Baskerville-Bridges, 3701 Palo Alto. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 27, at 2 p.m. in Robson Community Church. The bride-elect is a 1964 graduate of the Vancouver General Hospital. In September, the couple will leave for La Jolla, Calif., where the groom-elect intends to continue his studies for a doctorate in physics. (Miss Webster's photo by Atlas Studios, Vancouver.)

This coming Saturday will see the marriage of Miss Roberta Victoria Smale and Mr. David William Ralph in First United Church. Rev. J. D. SHOPPING GUIDE

Souvenirs Sway From China To Canadian-Made Leather

By PENNY SAVER

While shopping recently, I was interested to note that many shop owners have found that during the past few years, tourist attractions have taken a definite sway from souvenir bags and saucers to something more in the novelty line.

One manager told me that leather goods are among the best sellers and emphasized his point by showing me shelves crisscrossed with Canadian-made leather goods ranging in price from $1 to $2.

Many of the items were handy, easy-to-pack travellers' kits and all were designed with a map of Canada on the dark brown leather cases.

Ideal for emergency mending needs is the compact sewing kit containing needles, measuring tape, and 10 spools of different colored thread. Price is only $2, and inside of the kit is divided with plastic for added convenience.

A "must" for every vacationer is a travel first aid kit. One selling in this shop at $1.60 contains absorbent cotton, assortment of bandages, sterile gauze, liquid disinfectant and adhesive tape.

Another style of first aid kit is priced at $1.50 in a leather case and is designed with a downtown Victoria scene.

If there's a penny collector in the family, a special savings bank priced at $1 is in order. Glass bank is covered with plastic to avoid breakage and plastic lid is covered in tan leather.

Looking for convenient travel souvenirs? Then call Penny at 382-3131 and ask for name and location of this shop.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Hot meals are not very appealing when the temperature soars. Cold meals seem much more attractive, yet some of the items which are cold to the tongue are actually heating. These are the calorie-packed foods.

Cold lean meats, beef and ham, cold sliced chicken and seafoods, are all appetizing and are not heating. Just take care how you dress them up! If you add gobs of fancy dressings, this makes a big difference. Cat-soup with a little hot sauce added is a splendid companion for shrimp and crabmeat.

The cold meals are also helpful because you do not have to cook every day when you use them. Then, too, you can keep them low in calorie count by cutting off the fat portions and adding just a little mustard or eating a few thin pickle slices with them.

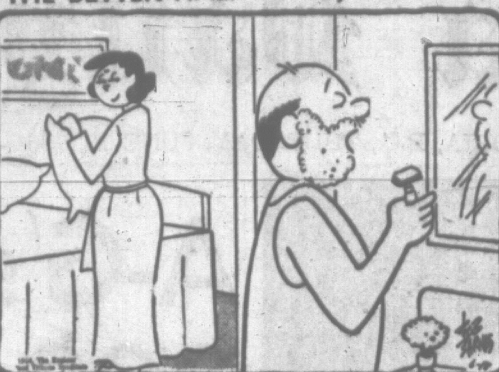

Along with these meats you can have cottage cheese, hard-boiled eggs, cool fruit juices, fresh garden vegetables, and tossed green salads or head lettuce. Again, use one of the low-calorie dressings on the market if you are watching your weight and are fighting the heat, or you can make your own dressing at home.

If you want to do this, use tomato juice as a base and add onion or garlic or herbs or whatever flavoring appeals to you. A little lemon juice is always a happy addition. Broccoli is delicious just with lemon juice. Cold bread is also more attractive on a hot day. French and Italian loaves are wonderful.

Remember that overeating is heating, and places a strain on your system, just as very hot weather does. Therefore, in the summer especially, the habit of stuffing oneself should be avoided. If you drink a lot of iced tea or coffee during the hot season use one of the artificial sweeteners. Some of these taste like the real thing. This is not an important item in calorie counting unless you drink many cups or glasses of coffee or tea.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Guide to Food Types," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 42 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Belisle-Evans Vows Heard In St. Andrew's Cathedral

Baskets of yellow gladioli and yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated St. Andrew's Cathedral when Fr. Maurice Costello heard marriage vows exchanged between Maurine Anne Evans and Donald Albert Belisle.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Evans of Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Belisle of Moose Jaw, Sask. Mr. Evans gave his daughter in marriage.

Bride wore a gown of norganza over taffeta, fashioned with a V-neckline. Applied Rosette lace panel highlighted skirt that swept into a train. Scalloped veil misted from a dainty headpiece of crystal teardrops and seed pearls.

Bell-skirted gowns of apple green norganza were choice of bride's attendants. They complemented their ensembles with rose whimsies and shoes on tone. Yellow roses and white carnations formed their bouquets.

Louie Belisle was best man. Guests were ushered to pews by Maurice Belisle and Clarence Finigan.

Car wash, Esquimalt United Church girls' choir, Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Esquimalt Plaza. Proceeds for new gowns.

Baskets of white and yellow chrysanthemums and yellow gladioli decorated the Carlton Club for a reception which followed. Red roses and white candles centred bride's table. Edwin Cliff proposed the toast to his niece.

Following a honeymoon trip to the mainland and United States the newlyweds will make their home in Victoria. For travelling, the bride donned a double-knit cherry red suit with toning hat. White accessories and white rosebud corsage completed outfit.

DEAR ABBY . . .

It Should Never Happen!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last night I received a call from the mother of a 15-year-old girl. She said our 14-year-old son gave her daughter a black eye and a split lip. I was shocked and told my husband, who then gave our son a good beating. I have seen the girl, and she is a good six inches taller than our son and at least 30 pounds heavier, so it was not a very fair match. Our boy said this girl started calling him names and, when he ignored her, she started hitting and kicking him. He said he didn't want to fight her, but he wasn't going to stand there and let her beat him up, so he hit her in self-defence. Do you think our boy was wrong? What was he supposed to do?

MRS. M.
DEAR MRS. M.: Under NO circumstances should a boy ever hit a girl. Being 30 pounds lighter, he could have easily left her a half a block behind.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced four months ago, or at least he claims he did. He has now remarried and is living in California. I did not sign any divorce papers. In fact, I didn't even see any. I didn't have a lawyer represent me in Mexico and I have it on good authority that my husband was never in Mexico. He got this divorce by proxy or something like that. Is he legally divorced from me? And if he isn't, how can he be legally married to somebody else? Am I a bigamist?

BEWILDERED
DEAR BEWILDERED: If your husband married another woman while he was still legally married to you, HE is the bigamist, not YOU. See a lawyer and find out where you stand.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people think they are doing a friend a favor when they go in gangs to visit them in a hospital? My sister recently had a baby and six of her friends came at exactly two p.m. and they stayed the full two-hour visiting time. When more came, nobody left—they just crowded in, sitting all over the bed and the window sill. They laughed and talked among themselves and made a regular party out of it. When nighttime came, my poor sister was so exhausted she had to have a hypo to put her to sleep. Whose fault is this? I say the nurses should not allow visitors to wear the patients out.

BURNED UP
DEAR BURNED: Nurses cannot police every room. Most hospitals have rules limiting the number of visitors each patient may have, and how long they may stay. Furthermore, surely a friend would not take offence if the patient, on becoming tired, frankly told her guests she wanted to nap a bit.

DARK PURPOSE
Victoria Premiere
Atlas Theatre
Shirley Jones is as winsome as ever in the role of a glamorous art appraiser who falls in love with an aristocratic Italian killer. Exotic Italian scenery, filmed in technicolor, is the background to her romance but the ominous background music, recurring at regular intervals, warns us there is dirty work ahead.
The many admirers of Rosano Brazzi as a usually high-minded lover (notably in South Pacific) may find it hard to get used to him as a killer. Yet his charm is there in plenty and he can be sinister as the dickens when he wants to be.

Drama and suspense are effectively blended in what is really an elegant thriller based on a novel by Doris Hume Kilburn. The Italian scenery almost steals the show and Shirley Jones, in a wide range of beautiful summer-wear, uses her legs to advantage even when murder is close.

DOMINATES FESTIVAL SEASON

'Searing' King Lear Wins Stratford Raves

STRAFORD, Ont. (CP)—Shakespeare's King Lear emerged as the certain choice of the critics to dominate the Stratford Shakespearean Festival as it wound up the last of the three opening nights of its 12th season Wednesday.

Critical response to the openings of King Richard II Monday and Moliere's Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme on Tuesday was generally good, but nowhere approached the rave notices Lear received.

Critics agreed Canadian actor John Colicos created one of the greatest performances of King Lear ever seen. Ronald Evans said in the Toronto Telegram "the stage was set afire by John Colicos in a blazing performance of searing, brilliant beauty."

And Herbert Whittaker, theatre critic of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said he saw "this greatness through a haze of tears which have not dried completely as I write of its success."

"The Colicos Lear is one that will go down in Stratford's history," said Sydney Johnson of the Montreal Star.

APPLAUD DIRECTOR
Equal acclaim to that given Colicos went to the director, Michael Langham. And the supporting actors also fared well. By comparison Richard II and Gentilhomme are bound to be eclipsed this season.

Smile Show
Singer Plays
Barkerville
Victoria song-and-dance entertainer Miss Dorothy Hosie has joined the gay-90s troupe which plays Barkerville all summer.
Well known in the Smile Show here since 1958, Miss Hosie, 21, has joined the company for rehearsals at Vancouver. They open at Barkerville, the restored gold rush town in the Cariboo, June 30.
This year, on conclusion of the engagement at the old Theatre Royal, the show will go on the road, completing its tour Sept. 30 at Vancouver.
Miss Hosie will appear in solo acts and with Susan Dowie.
Barkerville, 60 miles east of Quesnel, is a provincial park. Once nearly a ghost town, it has been recreated to resemble the booming gold centre of a century ago and has become one of B.C.'s major tourist attractions.

Yet Gentilhomme, directed by Montreal's Jean Gascon, may be the most popular play with the general public. Critics felt this Moliere farce was terrific fun, but perhaps not quite true to the author's intentions.
Richard II, which opened Monday to a packed house of elite members of government, business and the arts in Canada, fared less well at the hands of the critics, even though the audience brought the players back for six curtain calls.

The play, directed by Stuart Burge of the Bristol Old Vic Company in his Canadian debut divided the critics down the middle. William Hutt took the title role, his first in a long Stratford career.

The Stratford company, built up over many years to comprise a bevy of top-quality talent, includes such familiar names of the Canadian stage as Hutt, Colicos, Douglas Rain, who took the title role in Gentilhomme, Eric Christmas, Leo Ciceri, Eric House, Bruno Gerussi, Martha Henry, Frances Hyland, Diana Maddox, Tony Van Bridge and William Needles.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — New York's getting a lot of undeserved raps about the handling of the crowds piling in here to see the World's Fair . . . it looks like the 1964 Man of the Year will be either Nixon, Stassen or one of the Hotel Astor's room clerks.

We DO have a hospitable city (I keep saying). Naturally, Kirk Douglas, Robert Horton, Milton Berle or Carroll Baker in that "Carpetbaggers" gown will get hospitality . . . but . . .

Little people get hospitality, too. I decided to help American Express and the Be My Guest Service give Guestmanship awards.

My awardees include El Morocco. Has it upped its prices for its unique sizzling, baked potato with caviar? It has NOT!

"The price is still only $12.50," said Angelo and Joe the other morning with great firmness. With another scoop of caviar, it would only be about $20, and what more can anybody ask?

THEY TRY
Seriously, though . . . the phone operators in the hotels, the subway token-sellers, the cops, are trying.

A little girl, Audrey Robin Mazur of Brooklyn suggested I give her dad, Bernard Mazur, a cab driver, an award. He'd recently given a blind man a big taxi ride free.

"Would you give me more details?" I asked her.

"She thought I wanted more reasons."

"My Daddy," she said, "picked up a woman passenger last winter during a terrible snowstorm . . . was blocked by snowdrifts everywhere . . . the woman had no place to go so he was trying to visit her son . . . my Daddy brought her home to stay the night with us . . . the next day my Daddy took her to her son."

Bernard Mazur gets one of my awards. Quite a city, New York, where a taxi driver has a press agent—his daughter.

A first: the entire cast of Sammy Davis' "Golden Boy" (40 people) helicoptered to Philadelphia Monday to prepare for the opening there . . . Comedian Jackie Vernon's got a busy time. Flying from Hollywood Saturday, finishing at the Crescendo, to London to do a TV show Sunday, then back to Chicago to open at Mr. Kelly's Monday. A couple of years ago he was riding buses, then he hit on TV . . . Vaughn Meader will introduce his new political satire act at Cafe Au Gogo here July 14 just when the politicking is hot.

There's plenty of comedy in that new Donald O'Connor-Kareena show at the Las Vegas Sahara, with O'Connor emulating Jackie Gleason, singing, "I wine and dine, what a ball, I'm swimming in cholesterol."

Carol Channing's invitations to a big midnight party at Teddy's will be the most prized documents in town . . . The Income Tax boys are after what producer? . . . Jerry Vale'll do the background singing for Paramount's "Love Goddess" . . .

Bill Holden'll build his own lake in Switzerland with loot from "The 7th Dawn." Sure, everybody has his own lake nowadays! A slimmed-down Barbara Streisand (and hubby Elliot Gould) cheered Trini Lopez and the Smothers Brothers at Basin St. E. . . . Allie Reynolds, the former great Yankee pitcher, looked particularly fit at Tools Shop's—leading someone to remark of the wealthy Oklahoma, "Look at that tan of his. Some of that oil must have dripped on him."

Tony Bennett, who flew up from Washington for the WNEW benefit at Madison Square Garden, had the compliment returned. Radio station president John Kluger flew a party of 20 down to Washington to catch Tony's act at the Shoreham Hotel.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Comedian Bill Cosby said he wanted to catch a horror movie . . . but the theatre was so jammed he took a subway ride instead.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "I know a guy who found a new way to stop smoking," says Billy ("Golden Boy") Daniels. "He quit his job—and now he doesn't have money to buy a pack of cigarettes."

REMEMBERED QUOTES: Sign in the Grecian Palace (where young poets spout their verse): "Curb your doggerel."

EARL'S PEARLS: A fellow said at Manny Wolf's that his wife gave him a cheque for Father's Day: "All I had to do was sign it."

... That's earl, brother.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Patrick Sagan, age 7, of San Clemente, Calif., for his question:

What are the redwood trees really like?

The big redwoods of California took more than 2,000 years to grow—and lumbermen cut most of them down in less than 100 years. This year there were plans to cut down more of them to make room for a new freeway. But sensible Californians and redwood friends from faraway Milwaukee and New England spoke up and tried to save the ancient giants of the forests.

Every year visitors take pictures and movies of the giant redwoods that grow in California and go back home to tell their friends about them. But words and pictures cannot give a true idea of a redwood forest. In order to know what they are really like, a person must visit a grove of the ancient giants and see for himself.

The big trees stand on foggy mountain slopes facing the Pacific Ocean—and there they have been growing for 2,000 and 3,000 years. Many of the Sequoia redwoods were 1,000 years old in the year 1 A.D. Some redwood trees stand 300 feet tall, as high as 50 tall men standing upon each other's heads. A whole class of seven-year-olds would have to stretch their arms wide and join hands to make a ring around their rusty-red trunks.

A grove of these forest giants is a peaceful place of misty shadows with pale sunbeams streaming down from on high. Almost all the trees are mighty redwoods for their huge trunks stand close together. They crowd out the shrubs that clutter most forest floors. When you first enter the grove, you may think you are inside a huge cave or a lofty cathedral. Then you see the stately trunks and look up, up and up through the feathery foliage to a patch of sky above.

Redwoods Once Plentiful

You might expect a giant tree thousands of years old to be gnarled and ugly. But the beautiful redwoods show no signs of age. Their rough red trunks point straight, very straight up to the sky. There are no branches for 80 to 100 feet and then the pale green, ferny leaves begin. The wide trunk tapers thinner and thinner until it ends in a point at the top, perhaps 300 feet above the peaceful forest floor.

Redwoods and sequoia trees are evergreen trees decked with feathery little needles of pale lettuce green. They bear cones that look like scaly brown globes one inch wide. And strange to say, the great trees grow from seeds so small that it takes thousands of them to weigh as much as a walnut.

When the Ice Age crept down from the north, there were great forests of redwood over North America, Europe and Asia. Now the big trees live only in California. About 100 years ago the ancient trees covered one and a half million acres, but now only one-seventh of them remain. Sensible Californians are trying to save the last of their old forest giants from the lumberman's axe.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Jon La Porte, age 10, of Brookfield, Wisc., for his question:

What makes a tree hollow?

A tree goes on growing for years and many more years. Each season it adds a new ring of wood around the outside of its trunk and around each of its branching twigs. The new layers of wood carry the watery sap from the ground up to the topmost leaves. As the tree grows older, the heartwood in the centre of the trunk has no work to do at all. It becomes dry and flaky, and the tree seems to forget it.

The woods are full of little animals that like to burrow into soft places, bugs and grubs that like to hide in safe shelters and birds that like to hunt bugs and grubs for dinner. All these creatures attack the crumbly heartwood in the centre of the tree trunk, and in time it wears away. The tree becomes hollow. But year by year it adds new wood around the outside of the trunk, and the hollow in the middle does the tree no harm at all.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

Negro Finds Us As Bad As U.S.

By JACK HUTTON

Are Canadian young people guilty of polite discrimination while they smugly tut-tut stories about racial tension below the U.S. border?

Do they agree in school debates that the color of one's skin should make no difference while never inviting colored schoolmates home because the block might think it strange?

Are they buddies with a colored student while he is the star of the hockey, baseball or football team and centre of attention but angry when he believes he can go out with any girl in the school?

Embittered

I'm only asking those questions, not saying they are facts everywhere. But they cropped up in my mind after a letter from an obviously embittered reader, a 19-year-old Negro boy who has been seeking a job in Vancouver, Winnipeg and Toronto.

At his request, I've withheld his name. But you may find what he has to say upsetting. In fact, since he has lived and travelled across Canada you may have met him.

Our correspondent (let's call him John) writes: "I've wanted to sit down with you sometime because I understand you write for Canadian young people in quite a few newspapers. However, I'm writing so I can state my thoughts calmly."

Discrimination

"Whenever I've seen your column, you've talked about how to get better marks, changes in mathematics, teen-age success stories, even the Beatles."

"Fine, I'm not knocking this. You obviously do it well or you wouldn't have your readership. What I'd like to know, however, is when someone like yourself will have the guts to talk about a taboo topic: teen-age discrimination."

"It doesn't exist? Just read on."

"I was born in Detroit, Mich., where my father was a stock clerk for a small plant. As long ago as I can remember, he stressed two things. First, he wanted all his kids to get the education he didn't."

Didn't Worry

"Secondly, he used to talk at night about Canada where they didn't worry about the color of your skin. It was wonderful, heaven, the end of the rainbow. I used to dream about it."

"Now, this didn't bother me at first. My best chums in public school were two white boys from around the corner. But a funny thing happened. Half way through our first year in high school, one of them told me: 'Sorry, but my folks say we shouldn't spend so much time together.'

Sudden Decision

"Just like that. Wham. That's when I decided I was heading up to Canada as soon as I could hold down a job. All of a sudden I decided this was what Dad had meant in his talks. I couldn't wait."

"I graduated from high school one year ago this spring and never had a doubt about my destination. Because I'd never seen the west coast, I drove with a buddy to Vancouver, B.C."

"This first night I answered an ad for a room. The look I got from the landlady was like a kick in the stomach. This was no different from home. She turned me down with some excuse."

Unsuccessful

"I can't quote the entire letter, so should say here that John looked unsuccessfully for a salesman's job. He lived with nice family who tried to convince him the first landlady was an exception, but he was suspicious by now."

"I moved on to Winnipeg and found a selling job that paid not too badly. Then the other side of the coin hit me. I wandered into coffee shops where school gangs just about my age were sitting. I couldn't make contact with them."

"Finally, I moved to Toronto. Would you believe it, I found I'd gone full circle. Here I found people my age who figured it was fashionable to know at least one Negro—provided he didn't step over invisible boundaries."

Chance Remark

"I only discovered what was happening through a chance remark from someone who didn't realize I was listening. And, funny thing, I wasn't even angry. Only hurt and disappointed."

"Maybe I'm misjudging a whole country, because I haven't worked in Canada's Maritimes or Quebec. But I'm so disillusioned that I'm heading back to Detroit. At least my original friends are there."

"Just one small problem. What do I tell dad?"

Magazines and newspapers are talking about a "long hot summer" of racial problems across the border. I quote John's letter as proof that the problem exists here too."

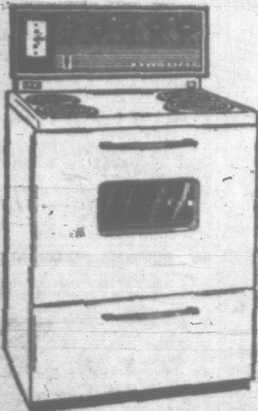

Will attitudes change? The answer is up to our generation.

COURT'S RULING

Faith Loses Out To Unborn Child

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—The New Jersey State Supreme Court, ruling that an unborn child is entitled to medical protection under the law, has ordered a pregnant woman to submit to blood transfusions if they are needed.

The woman, Mrs. Williamina Anderson of Asbury Park, had refused transfusions on grounds that it would violate her religious beliefs as a Jehovah's Witness.

In a 6-to-0 opinion Wednesday, the court said:

"We are satisfied that the unborn child is entitled to the law's protection and that an appropriate order should be made to ensure blood transfusions to the mother in the event they are necessary in the opinion of the physician in charge at the time."

LEFT HOSPITAL

Mrs. Anderson, nearly eight months pregnant, entered Fitkin Hospital in Neptune June 3, but left without the doctors' knowledge on Tuesday.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Anderson was bleeding internally, an indication that birth would be accompanied by hemorrhage and death unless the mother received transfusions.

Mrs. Anderson's lawyer, W. Glenn How of Toronto, a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, told the court his religion would not hold it a mortal sin if Mrs. Anderson received blood under a court order. He said, however, that it would be considered as objectionable as rape.

RISKS CITED

How contended that there are risks in accepting as well as rejecting transfusions. A person should be allowed to make up his own mind, How said.

The court also rejected a motion for a 72-hour stay of decision to allow Mrs. Anderson to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I would feel pretty bad if the woman died in the meantime," said Chief Justice Joseph Weintz.

HEAVY SNOW SURPRISES SOUTH AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—Icy winter weather from the Antarctic brought the heaviest and most widespread snow of the century to South Africa today.

This sometimes racially tense city was treated to the extraordinary sight of laughing Whites and Africans playfully pelting each other with snowballs.

Snow falls here only once in five years on the average. In several low lying parts the snow was the first in memory. From southeastern Cape Province to remote Namib Desert in Southwestern Africa the entire country was blanketed.

Knowles Urges War On Poverty

OTTAWA (CP)—Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) Wednesday called for an immediate program by the government along the lines of President Johnson's "war on poverty."

Some reports indicated that up to 3,000,000 Canadians are living in relative poverty—a "sorry picture."

Mr. Knowles raised the subject in the form of a motion during the hour devoted to private members' business. It still was being debated at adjournment, which means it is not likely to come up again at this session of Parliament.

His motion asked that the government give immediate consideration, in consultation with the provinces, "to the advisability of filling the major gaps in this country's social security program."

He named medicare, guaranteed income during illness, pensions for widows with children and adequate survivors' benefits and retirement pensions.

Ex-Convict Job Survey Under Way

A survey is now being conducted through 128 B.C. municipalities and 1,000 industrial employers to see how many will be willing to employ and help rehabilitate ex-convicts.

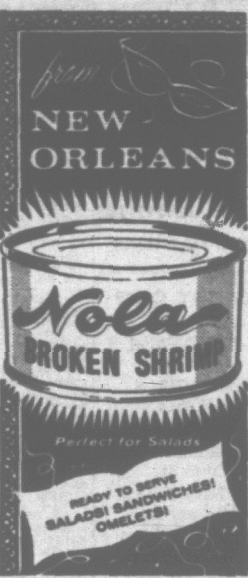

The survey asks what types of training should be given offenders while in prison, the organization the employer would like to work through for placement of men, and job requirements.

The annual report to the director of corrections in B.C. revealed more than 10,000 of the 14,844 offenders admitted to prisons in the year ending March, 1963, were repeaters.

Penology researcher C. J. Devetten says the offer of a job is the biggest help to an ex-convict in his readmission into society and resumption of responsibilities.

EDWIN LINK, FAMOUS FOR HIS

THE EXACT CONDITIONS OF FLIGHT, BECAME INTERESTED IN DIVING AFTER THE WAR.

Girl Denies Cashing Cheque at Sidney

An attractive, well-spoken young woman with hair braided at the back and bangs in front took the witness stand in B.C. Assize Court Wednesday afternoon and denied cashing a forged cheque for $138 in the Toronto-Dominion bank at Sidney last July 26.

"I have never been in that bank," said 21-year-old Gunda May Meldrajs of 1464 Begbie.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked her defence counsel, F. Michael P. Warren.

"Not guilty," she replied.

Miss Meldrajs said she couldn't remember where she was the day the cheque was cashed. She said she was born in Latvia and came to Canada at the age of five or six. She had since lived in Canada and the United States and had resided in Victoria with her mother for about 18 months.

COULD NOT REMEMBER

She worked for Arnold's Bakery last summer but could not remember if she was employed there on July 26—the day the cheque was cashed.

She went to the National Employment Office on July 30 and worked for Island Farm Dairies for a short while before going into St. Joseph's Hospital for five or six days.

Miss Meldrajs said she was working for Arnold's Bakery at the time of her arrest November 21.

"Have you ever worn your hair in such a manner that it is off your forehead completely?" asked Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie, Q.C.

"No, I have worn it this way since I was 16," Miss Meldrajs replied.

TAKING COURSE

She said she was taking a secretarial course in Victoria.

"I believe you are doing very well," said Mr. McKenzie.

"Yes, I am," Miss Meldrajs answered.

Further questioned, she said her father was a doctor from Latvia who is now employed in Illinois.

Mr. McKenzie asked where she bought her clothes in Victoria. Miss Meldrajs mentioned two or three stores and Mr. McKenzie asked if she would object to having her wardrobe checked by an investigator.

"No, I wouldn't object," she replied. "I haven't got many clothes."

Miss Meldrajs' counsel, Mr. Warren, was addressing the 12-man jury today.

'Outsiders Attempted To Exploit Indians'

CALGARY (CP) — William Wuttunee of Calgary, chief of the National Indian Council, said Wednesday the council has asked the RCMP to investigate attempts by outsiders to gain control of a proposed Indian crafts display at the 1967 Montreal world's fair to reap a major share of an estimated $2,000,000 profit.

He said in an interview the outsiders attempted to "use" Kahn-Tineta Horn and this resulted in a decision by the council to fire her as council princess and chairman of a sub-committee of the Indian centennial committee in charge of arranging Indian participation in the fair.

The Calgary lawyer said the unnamed group:

1. Attempted to use Miss Horn to win council's support to hire an architect and a public relations man to work on Indian exhibits at the fair;
2. Used an officer of the British Columbia Native Brotherhood as emissary in an offer to purchase a world's fair site for $100,000;
3. Attempted to bribe two members of the Indian council with offers of $20,000 each to vote for the appointment of the architect and public relations man;
4. Warned an Indian princess candidate and the editor of Thunderbird, a Toronto Indian publication, against association with the NIC;
5. Harassed another princess candidate by watching and besetting her activities.

Miss Horn, a striking 22-year-old Mohawk model, originally was named as a sub-committee of one to handle negotiations with fair authorities for NIC participation, which included a pavilion, an Indian village and handicrafts exhibit. She was to be responsible to Wilfred Pelletier of Toronto, chairman of NIC's centennial committee.

Mr. Wuttunee said her position first was questioned in February when it was found that she was making decisions and commitments without consulting Mr. Pelletier or the council.

The NIC subsequently added three members to her subcommittee, two NIC directors from the Caughnawaga Reserve near Montreal, and Mr. Wuttunee's brother, Noel, a Winnipeg artist.

This resulted in a study by the council, which led to Miss Horn's dismissal June 5 as subcommittee chairman and her removal as Canadian Indian princess.

Police Press Hunt for 4th Bank Suspect

Saanich police are still actively pushing the search for a fourth man they suspect was involved in the April 27 holdup of the Bank of Montreal at Cook and Quadra.

Detective - Sergeant Robin Stewart said today that police departments throughout the United States and Canada have been alerted to be on the lookout for Phillip Carew, a 27-year-old waiter.

Three men have already been convicted of the armed robbery and each is serving a 10-year sentence.

Det.-Sgt. Stewart said there is a warrant for Carew's arrest and he is confident the suspect will be picked up sooner or later.

Company, Union State Positions on Tieup

MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited says if all its office workers had to join a union the firm might have difficulty in attracting qualified employees.

The company gave this reason for rejecting a union shop proposal for Port Alberni office workers while accepting compulsory union membership in other branches of its operations.

The strikebound company made the statement Wednesday in Vancouver in answer to a series of questions posed to both union and company by a newspaper.

"There is a clear distinction between office employees and employees in trade and craft unions," the company replied.

"Office workers work in close proximity to management and much of their work is of a confidential nature. In the mill there is a sharp line between those who manage and those who do not.

"Furthermore, a union shop in the office of this division (Port Alberni) would force an employee transferred from another division, to join the union, thus imposing on him a new condition of employment.

"It is also a fact that some employees, particularly those with special qualifications, consider themselves part of the management group, and do not want to join a union," the statement said. It added, such people might not want to work for the company.

The union had made it clear in its reply to the same question, that it is willing to accept the same union security provisions that the company has agreed to offer its other unions.

"In rejecting this proposal, the employer makes it quite clear that his objective is to deny at any cost his office workers the right to join a union of their choice," said the union.

The union has asked for a union shop, which requires that all employees become members of the union within a given time, but it exempts several persons in managerial and confidential positions from the bargaining unit.

"It should be clearly understood," said the union, "that the Labor Relations Board has the authority to decide on the eligibility of the employees to be represented by the union."

(Some references have been made in the press to a closed shop. This name is applied where not only are all workers required to be in the union, but hiring is done through the union.

This has not been requested by the union in the current dispute.)

In a further statement the company said Wednesday that it has offered the union a "maintenance of membership" clause in the pending contract. Such a clause guarantees that union membership shall not fall below a certain percentage of the total workers during the term of the contract.

Although this would appear to block the company from refusing to hire any but anti-union employees to water down union strength until it could no longer exist, the proposal was rejected by the union, the company stated.

The Port Alberni strike of 49 office workers began May 19 and since then some 3,000 company workers in mills have stayed away from their jobs, refusing to cross office workers' picket lines. Another 1,000 woods workers were laid off.

Both the union and the company said Wednesday that the office workers' strike is legal but the company said the sympathy work stoppage by other union members is illegal under the Trade Unions Act. The company said it is considering "steps open to it to protect its interests" and says it has the right to sue.

However, earlier in the strike union officials said they did not order a sympathy walkout.

The decision to not cross a picket line was reached by each millworker independently, they claimed, and the union thus is not responsible and cannot be sued under the Trade Unions Act.

The company said it is not resisting organization of a union and is prepared to sign a contract. But the union says there are indications otherwise. It recalled that the company tried to have the labor relations board deny the workers' right to organize and refused to bargain on less important matters than union security.

The union also claims that the day prior to the strike the company "tried to bribe our members" with a pay increase in a confidential letter saying a retroactive increase had been deposited in local banks, for the individual employees.

Helmsman Of Death Tug Blacked Out

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The helmsman of the tugboat Rebel Jr. says he fainted and apparently fell against a steering lever which drove the tug and its barges into the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway.

The barges knocked out a 224-foot section of the 24-mile long bridge Tuesday and tumbled a bus into the water, killing six of the eight persons aboard.

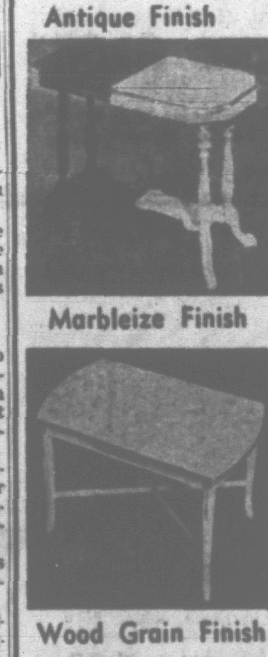

Clifford Milley, 26, said Wednesday in an interview from his hospital bed he must have fallen on the lever after blacking out, turning the tug on its collision course in the pre-dawn hours. He was alone in the pilothouse.

Tug Capt. Ned Palmer, 40, testified at a U.S. Coast Guard inquiry that Milley never had complained of blackouts or dizzy spells.

The coast guard recessed the hearing.

POWDER PUFF PICKETS at Port Alberni pulp mill prove labor war isn't all misery. The girls of striking office workers' union have male escorts as they parade, and they only picket by day. Here Linda Fenske has husband Walter along to hold her umbrella. Other escorts come from other unions and don't carry placards. Male office workers take on the night shift and carry their own umbrellas. Strike began May 19 and both sides are temporarily talked out. (See pages 19, 33.)

BROKEN DIKE FORCES THREE FAMILIES OUT

HARRISON MILLS (CP)—Flood waters from the Harrison River poured today through a 40-foot breach in a municipal dike and forced three families to evacuate at this farming community.

Neighbors helped the three families move about 100 head of cattle to safety.

Another 20 families living on the south side of the Louheed Highway and are being threatened by the flood and have made ready to evacuate at a moment's notice.

Crews were sandbagging a road in the area in an attempt to protect other threatened farmland.

LAW PROTESTED

MDs to Fight Birth Control Restrictions?

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian Medical Association is expected to be asked shortly to add its powerful voice to a swelling chorus of protest against Canada's restrictive law on birth control.

Demand for the repeal of the widely violated law have been voiced during recent weeks in Parliament and in the churches, by welfare organizations and women's groups.

The governing general council of the CMA at its annual meeting in Vancouver June 22-26 will consider "certain recommendations about changes in the birth control law," says the chairman of the CMA's maternal welfare committee, Dr. Louis J. Harris.

Dr. Harris, prominent Toronto obstetrician, would give no details of his committee's recommendations in advance of their presentation to the CMA council. However, his personal stand, he said, is for repeal of the law against dissemination of information about birth control.

Should organized medicine in Canada decide for the first time to advocate formally a change in the law, it would lend weight to demands for the repeal of the Criminal Code's sanction against the sale or advertisement of birth control methods or instruction in them.

URGE CHANGE

Within a few weeks at the end of May and early in June the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, two Ontario conferences of the United Church, the Toronto diocese of the Anglican Church and the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec called for a change in the law.

"Under present law, every minister who gives advice on family planning is breaking the law," Rev. A. J. Gowan told the Presbyterian assembly.

WHILE UN DEBATES

Cyprus Fight Erupts Again

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—Heavy fighting broke out again today between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots in the northeastern part of this embattled Mediterranean island, the United Nations Command said.

A UN spokesman said a church and a school in the Greek-Cypriot village of Mophili were set afire by mortar shells.

Automatic weapons, mortars and grenades were used in the fighting in the area which has been the scene of sharp clashes since last Monday.

There were no reports available on casualties in the renewed fighting, which came on the day when the UN Security Council in New York was debating a plan to extend for three months the UN peace-keeping force on the island.

At least one Greek-Cypriot was killed and one wounded in the earlier fighting in the area of today's clash. The UN reported Wednesday that one Turkish-Cypriot was killed in shooting near the Turkish-Cypriot village of Yerovasa, west of Limassol. Another unconfirmed UN report said a second Turkish-Cypriot was killed in the southwest Turkish-Cypriot village of Suskiou.

Mother Kills Child, Leaves Hatred Note

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The mother of a two-year-old white girl told police today that she wrote a race-hatred note and left it beside the child's body after strangling her with a strip of bed sheet.

Homicide Lt. Spurgeon Davenport said Yvonne Robbins, 23, said "I can't stand to see anything suffer" and added her little girl, Terri Odell, was in pain from being hit on the head with a brick by a neighbor child.

Davenport said Mrs. Robbins said the injury occurred Wednesday and she had been afraid to take the child to a doctor because she feared she might be accused of striking the girl.

Mrs. Robbins and her husband Joseph, a sign painter, had reported she found the girl dead early this morning beside a note which read:

SAFE STEALING

Housewife vs. Little Leaguers

CALGARY (CP)—Mrs. Anne Paliwoda of Calgary has been ordered to return two baseballs that fell in her backyard after being hit by little leaguers, but a charge of theft laid against her was dismissed.

Mrs. Paliwoda told magistrate's court this week windows had been broken and other damage done to her home and property during the last few years.

The problem appeared again this summer when a Little League team held practices on a diamond 30 feet from her home.

After a player retrieved the first ball that fell in her yard, Mrs. Paliwoda kept a second.

The team manager complained and police were called. A second ball landed in her yard while she explained the situation to officers. She kept that one, too.

Mrs. Paliwoda denied a charge by the team manager that she didn't want the children to have fun, but said the fun should not be at her expense.

"Our garden and house have been damaged, my neighbor and I have been shunned and stones have been thrown at our homes by the players."

Huge Ore Strike Estimate Doubled

Soviet Modifies Arms Plan

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union forecast a move today to meet the American position on a proposed "bonfire" of nuclear bomber planes.

Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the 17-country disarmament conference a forthcoming new Kremlin plan will modify the Jan. 28 Soviet proposal calling for total destruction of all bombing planes.

The January proposal was rejected by the United States as impractical and unacceptable to the West. An American counter-plan March 19 called for destruction of 480 American B-47s, matched by the destruction of 480 Soviet TU-16s over a two-year period. The Russians rejected the counterproposal.

Zorin hinted his new proposal will take into account the American objections to scrapping all bombers.

"The Soviet delegation will present its views on how and in what order we think it most appropriate, taking into account opinions advanced by other delegations, to carry out the elimination of bomber aircraft," he said. "At present we would like only to state that the Soviet Union is going to occupy a flexible position in this matter."

TALK PRIVATELY

American officials were intrigued by Zorin's use of the word flexible. Immediately after the morning conference session, U.S. disarmament negotiator William C. Foster took Zorin aside in an unscheduled private talk lasting nearly an hour.

Presumably, Foster sought to draw out Zorin as to what the Soviet Union has in mind on how and in what order bomber planes should be destroyed.

Significantly, the bomber bonfire was not directly mentioned in an agreement on the conference agenda reached between Foster and Zorin and announced earlier today. This indicated the United States and the Soviet Union may be on the verge of genuine bilateral negotiations on the bonfire and therefore did not wish the matter to be raised in the unwieldy 17-nation group at this time.

The agenda agreement reached by Foster and Zorin did not remove or reduce fundamental deadlocks on the items mentioned for discussion. But it was the first formal agreement on an agenda reached in the two-year conference and should help brighten the atmosphere of the talks.

The U.S. said today it is prepared to accept a complete verified "cut-off" in the production of fissionable materials for use in nuclear weapons.

Dead Husband Inside $25 Million Ontario Mine Plan

... doors opened

NEW YORK (AP)—Only minutes after Mrs. Selma Simpson saw her husband precede her into their apartment building, the self-service elevator returned to the lobby with his slain body.

The victim of the macabre murder Wednesday night was Leonard Simpson, 63, a lawyer. He was slain by a single bullet that passed through his heart, Dr. William J. Brady, assistant medical examiner, reported after conducting an autopsy.

Police earlier had expressed belief he was stabbed, possibly with an ice pick.

Police put out an alarm for a man Mrs. Simpson and others saw leaving the building.

Police said the victim's wallet was empty of bills, although Simpson's younger son, Victor, 23, told police his father usually carried about $50 in bills.

As the elevator doors opened, disclosing his body, face down, Mrs. Simpson screamed and said: "Oh my God. Wait a minute. It looks like my husband."

Just before the elevator doors opened, Mrs. Simpson and two men who also were waiting for the elevator noticed a tall, gaunt Negro with a moustache, who came down the stairs, waved to them in a friendly way and left the building.

NEW YORK (AP)—Texas Gulf Sulphur said today that its ore discovery at Timmins, Ont., is apparently twice as big as at first believed and also richer.

Claude O. Stephens, president, said 26 drill holes and 17 assay tests indicate a body 200 to 500 feet wide, 1,800 feet long and possibly 1,400 or more feet deep.

The dimensions suggest a reserve of about 55,000,000 tons containing 1.33 per cent copper, 7.08 per cent zinc and 4.85 ounces of silver to the ton.

Earlier estimates put the reserve at 300-400 feet wide and 800 feet long with some 25,000,000 tons of ore, including .73 per cent copper, 12 per cent zinc and 1.31 ounces of silver.

Trading in the company's stock, which had shot from a range of about 28 to about twice that in the weeks after its discovery, was halted on the New York Stock Exchange at mid-day.

It reopened at 53 1/4, up 1 1/2. Trading in Curtis Publishing Company, which owns property in the area, also was held up after the announcement. It was selling at 13 1/2, up 1, at the time.

DESCRIBES PLANS

Stephens told directors the company plans to start immediately clearing roads for a facility to mine and process 6,000 tons of ore a day. This will require a capital investment of about $25,000,000, he said.

Concentrates from the pits probably will be sold to outside smelters at first, but the company is considering building its own smelters, he said.

"A preliminary testing indicates that ore may be separated into its various metal components by a process of crushing, grinding and flotation to produce saleable concentrates," he said.

"As previously announced, the ore body begins at the relatively shallow depth of about 20 feet, which will permit open-pit mining for some years.

"Twenty-six drill holes of varying depth have been completed in the ore body. Assays have been completed on 17 holes. These drill holes (at present) indicate an ore body roughly 200 to 500 feet in width and to date 1,800 feet in length. Although one hole has established a vertical ore depth of at least 1,400 feet, the over-all depth has not been delimited."

Parley Opens On Malaysia

TOKYO (UPI)—The long-awaited foreign ministers' meeting on Malaysia opened in Tokyo today to work out an agenda for a summit conference among the heads of Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines.

Police Batter Negroes in Pool

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—A near-riot broke out and many demonstrators were arrested in a new flare-up just as this troubled city appeared to be reaching a settlement of its racial troubles.

The near-riot broke out when six Negro men and women jumped into a pool in which whites were swimming at the Monson Motor Lodge.

Whites yelled to the Negroes to get out and the motel manager, Bill Brock, poured two gallons of muriatic acid in the pool, sloshing it at the Negroes. A policeman leaped into the pool, grabbed one Negro around the neck and they began fighting. Then club-swinging officers surrounded the pool, hitting at the Negroes in the water.

UN SCORES SOUTH AFRICA

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United Nations security council today voted a new condemnation of South Africa's apartheid policies and ordered a study of possible punitive measures.

A compromise resolution, sponsored by Norway and Bolivia, was approved 8 to 0 with France, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia abstaining.

"Arrest them!" cried some of about 100 whites watching the struggle. "Get the dogs!"

Finally the Negroes climbed out of the water, some bruised by clubbing on backs, arms and shoulders and were taken to jail.

A short time earlier, about 50 persons, including a group of rabbis, were arrested during an attempt to get service in the lodge restaurant.

The rabbis from several states joined Negroes for a march Wednesday night through a white residential section of St. Augustine. It was something new in the way of racial demonstrations in the oldest city in the United States.

"If they can come through our neighborhood we can go through theirs," Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy of Atlanta, Ga., told a church meeting.

This was a reference to two night marches through a Negro section last week by white segregationists. Negroes have staged their protest marches in the downtown area.

The new night-time demonstration was held without incident. Earlier, a dozen Negroes were taken into custody during sit-in attempts, pushing the total to more than 200.

In Washington, there was every indication the Senate would pass the historic civil rights bill by the end of the week.

COMMONS REFUSES TO SUMMON EDITOR

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons voted 107 to 94 today against a motion to summon the editor of the Ottawa Citizen or his editorial writer before the Commons privileges committee.

The motion was moved by Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona) who complained about an editorial headed "The End of the Affair" which commented on the privileges committee inquiry into an MP's allegations he was offered a fat election fund to join the Liberals.

Vancouver Island Revisited

NANAIMO—The handsome black Tokyo-based freighter Ritsuyo Maru has ended her three-week drowse at anchor off this rich, busy and at the moment slightly nervous city. At 5 p.m. Tuesday, Captain T. Nishikawa pointed his 5,234-tonner for Vancouver, where she will top off a partial loading of Harmac pulp with general cargo.

Alberni was to have been her next port of call. But a ship can afford to lie idle in harbor only so long, and with Harmac's west coast sister mill strikebound, there seemed no point in further waiting.

Here in our island's bustling hub, one man with a good job and money in the bank has cancelled his order for a $3,000 boat-motor-trailer combination. He isn't precisely anticipating lean days but better, maybe, to soft-pedal the spending until the Alberni strike is over.

Assertively independent though the island centres are, they are all to greater or less degree influenced in their economic health by the state of the forest industry. But Alberni and Nanaimo bleed a drop or two.

So the impression we get, talking to this man and that on bustling Front Street or down along the waterfront, is that for a while at least, Nanaimo's free spending may be tempered by a touch of caution.

But only by a touch. Across the water, Macmillan Bloedel and Powell River's giant Harmac mill is pouring its vapor-columns into a grey sky, and a quarter-mile away, a new high-rise is mounting toward its eventual 16 storeys. North, south and west, the subdivisions continue to gulp land which was empty when I was a kid in these parts.

Nanaimo is drastically altered from those days when coal, not lumber, was king, and the black-face miners came off shift to keep British Columbia's largest concentration of beer parlors booming.

There are still beer parlors aplenty, and the grim old HBC bastion still frowns above its cannons at the Indian race-which is paddling its lean dugout along the Protection Island lee. But cocktail lounges have been added, and they're planning a boat basin to shelter a portion of Nanaimo's swarming work and pleasure craft, and an inlet is to be filled so that the seamounting business section will have more room.

A good many fishermen winter here. An increasing number of convention planners turn their eyes this way.

The pace is brisk. Below me as I write this, a fat CPR ferry has landed one set of passengers, taken on another, and cleared for the mainland. A trim seaplane has set down from a charter flight, and another is readying for takeoff.

Except for the minor uneasiness, that occasional glance over the shoulder in the directions of the Alberni-Nanaimo appears to be doing very well indeed.

Among its 28,000 residents who form part of an impressive trading area population of 110,000 are those who wouldn't agree.

Coal will come back some day, say those who have never learned to trust a prosperity based so heavily on forest wealth. There's as much coal under the ground as ever came out; and a good thing for Nanaimo. Coal, they insist, was steadier.

Away from the hustling downtown, Nanaimo has its share of families on relief, and its unemployed young men.

As everywhere in Canada, a flag argument is easy to come by. I tried to promote one with Harbor Master John Dunham in his office under the shadow of the Bastion.

"Here," he said, with a nod toward the 30-foot Harbor Commission patrol launch, "we fly the Blue Ensign."

The launch works 10 hours a day, six days a week, in summer, and an eight-hour day in winter. During 1963, 299 deep-sea ships loaded pulp at Harmac's twin berths, and lumber and other cargo at the Assembly Wharf which juts from the Nanaimo shoreline.

In lumber alone, the freighters take away from seven to eight hundred thousand board feet of Island timber each trip.

While John Dunham gave me the picture, the Comet, Liberia-registered and manned by a Greek crew, was paying her second visit in less than a month. This call, the tough old Second World War Liberty is loading a million and a quarter feet for U.K. market.

Among the longshoremen swarming over her were two gangs dispatched by their union local from Alberni.

Indian Carvers Working On Totem Poles for Uvic

Two Tsimshian totem poles now being fashioned by Indian carvers at Thunderbird Park will be presented to the University of Victoria some time this fall.

They will stand on the campus but the actual site has not yet been chosen.

First of the poles, now almost completed, is a 35-foot copy of the Kitwano totem which once stood at Kitwano on the Skeena River. The second, standing 50 feet high, will be a copy of the Nass totem from the Nass River.

Tony Hunt, 21-year-old grandson of the late Chief Mungo Martin, is assisting his father, Henry Hunt, in carving the totems.

Hailed as a carver in the family tradition, Tony will give an exhibition of his work in the T. Eaton Company store here July 6-11.

Announcement of the location of a new liquor store in Saanich should be made shortly, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

Negotiations are under way to acquire a site, he said.

"I think the people of Saanich will be well pleased within the next short while."

He declined to tell the location.

However, it is understood the Liquor Control Board has run into a zoning problem, which indicates the site is in the McKenzie Avenue area.

A Saanich official said if the store were in an existing shopping centre the LCB would have to get council's approval, but there would be no need for rezoning.

If the store were anywhere else, it would have to be rezoned, and this would involve public hearings.

The LCB earlier was investigating both the McKenzie Avenue area and Royal Oak shopping centre.

COULD BE END

New Deal Must Come For Buses

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady today said that bus service here will end automatically when the current franchises run out in 1967 unless some arrangement to continue them is made.

He agreed with an opinion by Vancouver city solicitor Russell Baker, who warned his council that if the franchises are not renewed or a new arrangement provided, B.C. Hydro could simply stop running its buses.

"That's quite correct," commented Mr. O'Grady in a telephone interview from Harrison Hot Springs where he is attending a law society convention.

"When the franchises expire the government's obligation ceases and the municipalities never have had any obligation in a legal sense to keep the transit buses running."

POWER TO FORCE

Before the government took over the privately-owned B.C. Electric, the Public Utilities Commission had the power to force continuation of the transit system as a public necessity.

But the government-owned B.C. Hydro which succeeded the PUC's control. So there is no tribunal to compel the government to keep the buses running beyond the franchise expiry.

Mr. O'Grady was surprised to learn that a month ago the cabinet passed an order-in-council rescinding a 1948 decree that the PUC must consider the overall financial position of BCE when hearing tariff change applications.

"That's very foxy of them, isn't it," he commented.

INTENT IMPORTANT

"But I doubt it alters the position of the contracts (the BCE-municipal franchise agreements) because what's important is the intent of the parties when they made the agreement."

Mr. O'Grady maintains the franchises were based on the new-rescinded 1948 order-in-council because they obviously contemplated that overall profits of the electricity and gas branches of BCE would absorb transit losses.

A new order-in-council permits the PUC to hear the present application of B.C. Hydro for almost doubling its bus fares but prevents it from looking at electricity and gas profits.

BUSINESS CONCERNED

Meanwhile, there were signs that the business community as well as municipal councils and bus passengers were agitated by the proposed increase.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce's public affairs group scheduled a meeting for Tuesday, to which transit officials were invited, to investigate the proposal and make recommendations to the chamber's directors.

Stripping of overburden has already begun.

The Mt. Washington group is aiming at September production for a 100-ton mill which is to be erected on the property as rapidly as possible.

C. W. S. Tremaine, general manager of Mt. Washington Milling Co. Ltd., which will operate the mill for Mt. Washington Copper and Cumberland Mining Company Ltd., said that work on the mill site is all but complete.

Improperly Charged In Vancouver

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today ordered the release of up to 200 drunks from Oakalla Jail.

They had been improperly charged by the City of Vancouver.

The action follows a ruling Monday by Supreme Court Chief Justice J. O. Wilson quashing the conviction of Mrs. Winnifred Johnson, jailed by Magistrate Douglas Hume March 9 for 20 days.

The judge said no information of the charge had been given to the court before her plea was taken.

Normal procedure is that details of the charge are read to the court.

Mr. Bonner said an investigation by his department showed the Vancouver city prosecutor's office had been skipping this formality for "some duration."

IMMEDIATE ACTION

As a result he ordered the director of corrections to allow immediate release of Oakalla prisoners jailed on charges involving intoxication in Vancouver.

Mr. Bonner said up to 200 prisoners were to be freed.

Their sentences range from a few days to several months.

"In the circumstances these people would be entitled to be released if they made some application," he said.

"It could probably be demonstrated they were illegally detained."

Mr. Bonner said he was waiving the necessity for any appeal to the courts, although any resulting civil claims would be up to the individuals involved.

He said the Vancouver Prosecutor's Office had agreed with his decision and had corrected its procedure for charging drunks.

Bylaw Clears Way to Buy Road Link

An expropriation bylaw was to be introduced today to lay the groundwork for negotiations by Victoria council to purchase right of way for extending Finlayson Avenue.

A special city council meeting was to give three readings to the bylaw aimed at acquiring an 80-foot strip through the centre of a 6.3-acre field recently purchased by Chevrolet-Oldsmobile dealer Newell Morrison.

The property runs from Douglas Street through to Burnside opposite the present dead-end of Finlayson Avenue.

Mr. Morrison plans to relocate his car agency in new buildings to be erected on the property later this year.

Passage of an expropriation bylaw in council's usual first step before negotiating large purchases because it clearly sets out the city's intentions and enables it to take control of the land regardless of disputes over price.

Expropriation is seldom carried out but if there is no voluntary agreement the price is arbitrated.

Also to be considered at the afternoon meeting were proposals for extending residential zoning into the light industrial area of James Bay; and construction of a 25-storey apartment block on Blanshard Street opposite the former B.C. Electric building.

Referendum Vote Light

Despite a fast start, voting on Victoria's $3,387,000 capital budget referendum appeared headed for a light turnout today.

Indications pointed to a turnout of about 4,000 people, barring a late rush, city returning officer Frank Hunter said this morning.

This would be less than 25 per cent of the total eligible to vote.

Polls are open until 8 p.m. at the Victoria Ballroom, northwest corner of Pandora and Government Street.

VICTORIA BARRISTER Donald J. Lawson became head of the B.C. section, Canadian Bar Association, today when he was elected vice-president at the annual meeting in Harrison Hot Springs. Born and raised in Victoria, Mr. Lawson graduated in law at Osgoode Hall, University of Toronto, and served in the RCNVR from 1941 to 1945. He has been a partner in the Victoria law firm of Crease and Co. since 1946 and is campaign chairman for this year's United Appeal fund. He is married with three children and lives at 2595 Lansdowne.

Rock Blasted For 9-Floor High Rise

Rock blasting for another high rise apartment building near the Empress Hotel is underway.

Peter Hartnell, operator of the Thunderbird Motel, today said the new building would be nine stories high and would include two floors of car parking as well as 93 suites.

Site is a sloping property with frontage on both Douglas Street and Blanshard near their junction at the northwest corner of Beacon Hill Park.

(Excavation for another high-rise, a 16-storey apartment-hotel block, is underway at Douglas and Humboldt on lower ground and the two buildings, when completed, will straddle the Empress' laundry and Crystal Garden.)

"Cost of the project is $1,000,000," said Mr. Hartnell. "We plan to open the building June 1, 1965. We may add a rooftop restaurant but we haven't decided that yet."

Contractor for the project is Patterson Construction.

Dr. J. G. Patterson and Mr. Hartnell are principals of Carmel Holdings Ltd., the development company.

The building will be named the Queen Victoria.

Architects are Peterson and Lester.

TOPICS of the DAY

An 11-month-old child pulled down a television set on herself this morning, but escaped unharmed.

City police took Kristine Hunter, 140 Simcoe, to Saint Joseph's Hospital for a check-up.

The television set was a portable model on a stand, and the child apparently pulled the whole thing down while playing.

Arnold White blew his horn at the Salvation Army instead of with them, and today paid the price of his sins.

White, who lives at 1208 Fairfield, was fined $20 in city police court for unnecessary use of his car horn.

Court was told White drove alongside a Salvation Army gathering on Douglas Street, and blew his horn five times.

He said he did it just for a joke. "Not very funny," commented the magistrate.

A resolution commending the B.C. and federal governments on their negotiations to restore 110-year-old Craigflower Manor as a historic site was passed at a meeting of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Tuesday night.

Letters of thanks are being sent to Premier Bennett and federal Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Lalng.

"We are particularly interested in this project because of the friendly association between neighboring Indians and the farm since its early days," said Esther F. Tervo, corresponding secretary of the Indian Arts Society.

Negotiations were opened last week with a telegram from Mr. Lalng to B.C. deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace offering to share costs equally.

Bill Scott, Victoria's light-house philosopher whose court appearances have been many, confessed today he's getting tired of it.

He pleaded not guilty in city police court to going through a red light.

"Over the years, I've spent $3,000 in fines to prove some of our police are wrong, and I'm getting weary of it," he told Magistrate William Ostler.

Case will be tried July 2.

There will be no letter carrier delivery or wicket service at Victoria Post Office on the July 1 Dominion Day holiday.

Street letter box collections will be made in the evening only and holiday service will be in effect for special delivery letters, mail receipts and dispatches.

The 6th Arbutus (St. Paul's) Cub and Scout group will hold its annual garden party in Bullen Park Saturday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. There will be stalls and games for young and old.

SHRINE CIRCUS PLAYING HERE

Arena Turned Into 'Big Top'

Memorial Arena began buzzing with roustabouts early this morning as the Shrine Circus moved into the Memorial Arena.

Trapezes were hung from rapidly-erected rigging poles to await testing by the artists.

The highwire was strung above the concrete floor for the Trixie Troupe, but no safety net was put below.

On the arena floor green rubber matting was laid down and three large rings arranged in place.

It will be in these rings that most of the 30 acts will take place.

FILLED WITH COLOR

Trained poodles, trick bicycle acrobats, chimpanzees and clowns will fill the arena floor with color.

All three rings are needed for one act—the palomino dancing horses of Trevor Bale.

The entire circus travels in trailers, including approximately 15 tons of elephants.

One-act-Killers Jungle Killers—suffered engine trouble on the 1,600-mile trip up here from San Diego and was not expected to appear at the first show this afternoon.

This afternoon's matinee was scheduled for 4 o'clock, with an 8 o'clock performance this evening. The 4 and 8 o'clock shows will be repeated Friday.

NEW FLAGS SELL FAST IN TORONTO

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's proposed new flag has turned into a money-making business for four Toronto men who tour downtown streets peddling the small maple leaf flags at $1 each. The four say they have made $4,000 since last Wednesday. They print the flags, designed primarily for car aerials, at home by a silk screen process.

TORIES DON'T WANT IT

Rough Passage Seen for 'Jack'

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The split in the flag resolution, while adding voting strength to the distinctive Canadian flag, may mean a rough reception for the proposal to give some recognition to the Union Jack.

"I'll never vote for the Union Jack," says a Conservative backbencher who stoutly advocates the retention of the red ensign.

"There'll be a lot of red ensign supporters to go against the Union Jack," said another member of the party. "We want the ensign because it's a Canadian flag; we don't want the British flag."

The Commons now is debating the first part of the resolution dealing with the proposed adoption of a distinctive Canadian national flag—three red maple leaves on a white background with a vertical blue bar at each side.

If and when this is voted on, the second part of the resolution will be brought before the members. This would provide that the Union Jack "may continue to be flown as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth of nations and our allegiance to the Crown."

RESOLUTION SPLIT

Originally, members were to have voted on the two questions at once. But when the resolution came before the House Monday, Speaker Allan Macnaughton ruled that the two issues would be voted on separately.

The division seemed to assure a big majority for the new flag because many Quebec members, who opposed inclusion of the Union Jack, were now free to vote on the new flag by itself.

The 13-member Creditiste party, which had previously said it couldn't support the "two-flag resolution", said it would throw all its weight behind the maple leaf flag. Quebec members in the Conservative party made the same decision.

Initial reaction had suggested the Union Jack portion of the resolution would also breeze through the Commons when it arose. It was generally assumed that most of the Conservative members who are fighting on behalf of the red ensign would automatically stand for the Union Jack.

Not so, says one of the backbenchers. "The Union Jack is not a Canadian flag, and we don't want it as such. And what we're really opposed to is two flags. We've been clear on this."

HARD TO PLAN STRATEGY

But he said there would be difficulty in planning strategy because a vote against the Union Jack could be easily misunderstood in home constituencies.

"We haven't got that problem," said a Quebec member of the party. "The Quebec members of the party will probably all vote for the new flag and against the Union Jack." Quebec members of other Opposition parties are also expected to be against the second resolution although most Liberals will likely support the Union Jack.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons flag debate goes on the shelf today in favor of action on a constitutional amendment enabling widows and orphans to receive benefits under the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

Only four MPs—two Liberals and two Progressive Conservatives—were able to get into the flag debate during Wednesday's half-day Commons sitting.

It won't be revived until Parliament sends on its way to the British Parliament a request that the British North America Act be amended to permit the Canadian Parliament to legislate survivor benefits in the proposed contributory pension plan.

The constitutional amendment has been approved by the 10 provinces and the federal government wants to get it through before the Parliament at Westminster is dissolved for the British general election.

In Wednesday's flag debate, Conservatives Robert C. Coates (Cumberland) and O. W. Weichel (Waterloo North) coupled their support for retention of the red ensign with new calls for a plebiscite to settle the question.

LIBERALS BACK NEW FLAG

On the other side, Liberals Bryce Mackasey (Montreal Verdun) and John R. Matheson (Leeds) backed the government's proposed design—three red maple leaves on a white ground with a blue bar at each side—as acceptable to all Canadians.

Mr. Mackasey, noting that his riding is about evenly divided between French- and English-Canadians, said the maple leaf flag will not emphasize the differences of background but be a symbol acceptable to all national origins in Canada.

He urged MPs not to fall "into the trap of hatred" or to judge Quebec and French-Canada by the acts of separatists.

A plebiscite would "deteriorate into a carbon copy of a general election" with countless Canadians caught in the swell of emotion. It would emphasize cultural differences and widen still bridgeable differences of opinion.

Mr. Matheson, sometimes called the father of the government's design, rejected the red ensign as not being distinctively Canadian because it is flown by countless countries, merchant vessels, clubs and organizations in one form or another.

MUST RETAIN LINKS

He traced the three-leaf symbol as representing Canada back to pre-Confederation days, arguing that if flags don't retain some traditional link such as this with the past Canada might as well take the republican course of breaking with tradition.

"I personally hope this doesn't happen," he said.

He said to those who say the design is a concession to the French: "The French... are part of Canada—part of our family...."

"In a family, every member is loved... and the interests and anxieties of each are important. The distress of one... is the distress of all."

"I do not think it is a concession to do what is just and what is kind. It is only by caring for one another and being joined together and firmly rooted in this rich Canadian soil that our maple leaf family can survive."

Mr. Coates, concluding a speech interrupted by Tuesday night's adjournment, saw "shame in the action that has been taken by this government in automatically and dictatorially forcing a personal pennant, a flag that is meaningless, on the Canadian public."

The red ensign was Canadian by adoption, tradition and assimilation, he said. It contained the Union Jack, the maple leaf and the fleur-de-lis.

Bennett Says Government To Buy Small Bank Share

HANEY (CP)—The B.C. government probably won't acquire more than 5 or 10 per cent of the shares of the proposed new bank of British Columbia, says Premier Bennett.

He told a banquet meeting of Social Crediters here Wednesday night that, while the government had passed legislation permitting it to acquire up to 25 per cent of the bank's shares, "we only did that to show the people of B.C. that the government had confidence in the new bank."

Referring to opposition expressed in the Senate proper to the bank bill, Mr. Bennett said: "If the Senate wishes to say which Canadians should or should not be shareholders in a bank it should change the Bank Act—not our application."

Fisherman Law-Bound So Kingfisher Feasts

A Cadboro Bay man is standing by with an empty gun while a kingfisher daily raids his trout pool.

Keith Henderson, 3796 Cadboro Bay Road, has been denied permission to shoot the bird.

The pool is on his acre of land in the Mystic Springs area, and was stocked with 400 fingerling trout about 10 days ago.

Jail Term Doubled

ROME (Reuters) — The Italian Chamber of Deputies Wednesday doubled the minimum penalty—to one year in jail from six months—for manslaughter in traffic accidents. It put on record its "profound concern at the continuous increase in the number and gravity of such accidents."

He originally planned to add another 1,000 trout to the pool, but now it looks as if he'd just be adding to the bird's banquet.

"This is a heavily wooded area, and I thought it would not be dangerous to use a light shot at the kingfisher at close range. It wouldn't carry far," he says.

Discharging firearms within Saanich boundaries is prohibited.

LONDON (AP)—The Roman Catholic bishops of Britain today won Vatican backing for their firm stand against the growing use of birth control among the faithful.

Big Ore Strike
Estimate Doubled

NEW YORK (AP)—Texas Gulf Sulphur said today that its ore discovery at Timmins, Ont., is apparently twice as big as at first believed and also richer.

Claude O. Stephens, president, said 26 drill holes and 17 assay tests indicate a body 200 to 500 feet wide, 1,800 feet long and possibly 1,400 or more feet deep.

The dimensions suggest a reserve of about 55,000,000 tons containing 1.33 per cent copper, 7.08 per cent zinc and 4.85 ounces of silver to the ton.

Earlier estimates put the reserve at 300-400 feet wide and 900 feet long with some 25,000,000 tons of ore, including .73 per cent copper, 12 per cent zinc and 1.31 ounces of silver.

Trading in the company's stock, which had shot from a range of about 28 to about twice that in the weeks after its discovery, was halted on the New York Stock Exchange at mid-day.

It reopened at 53½, up 1½. The stock showed a net loss of about two at the close.

Trading in Curtis Publishing Company, which owns property in the area, also was held up after the announcement. It was selling at 13½, up 1, at the time.

DESCRIBES PLANS

Stephens told directors the company plans to start immediately clearing roads for a facility to mine and process 6,000 tons of ore a day. This will require a capital investment of about $25,000,000, he said.

"A preliminary testing indicates that ore may be separated into its various metal components by a process of crushing, grinding and flotation to produce saleable concentrates," he said.

"As previously announced, the ore body begins at the relatively shallow depth of about 20 feet, which will permit open-pit mining for some years.

"Twenty-six drill holes of varying depth have been completed in the ore body. Assays have been completed on 17 holes. These drill holes (at present) indicate an ore body roughly 200 to 500 feet in width and to date 1,800 feet in length."

Housewife
Must Return
Baseballs

CALGARY (CP)—Mrs. Anne Paliwoda of Calgary has been ordered to return two baseballs that fell in her backyard after being hit by little leaguers, but a charge of theft laid against her was dismissed.

Mrs. Paliwoda told magistrate's court this week windows had been broken and other damage done to her home and property during the last few years.

The problem appeared again this summer when a Little League team held practices on a diamond 30 feet from her home.

After a player retrieved the first ball that fell in her yard, Mrs. Paliwoda kept a second.

The team manager complained and police were called. A second ball landed in her yard while she explained the situation to officers. She kept that one, too.

Mrs. Paliwoda denied a charge by the team manager that she didn't want the children to have fun, but said the fun should not be at her expense.

"Our garden and house have been damaged, my neighbor and I have been stoned and stones have been thrown at our homes by the players."

Soviet Modifies
Arms Plan

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union forecast a move today to meet the American position on a proposed "hotline" of nuclear bomber planes.

Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the 17-country disarmament conference a forthcoming new Kremlin plan will modify the Jan. 28 Soviet proposal calling for total destruction of all bombing planes.

The January proposal was rejected by the United States as impractical and unacceptable to the West. An American counterplan March 19 called for destruction of 480 American B-47s, matched by the destruction of 480 Soviet TU-16s over a two-year period. The Russians rejected the counterproposal.

Zorin hinted his new proposal will take into account the American objections to scrapping all bombers.

"The Soviet delegation will... present its views on how and in what order we think it most appropriate, taking into account opinions advanced by other delegations, to carry out the elimination of bomber aircraft," he said. "At present we would like only to state that the Soviet Union is going to occupy a flexible position in this matter."

TALK PRIVATELY

American officials were intrigued by Zorin's use of the word flexible. Immediately after the morning conference session, U.S. disarmament negotiator William C. Foster took Zorin aside in an unscheduled private talk lasting nearly an hour.

Presumably, Foster sought to draw out Zorin on what the Soviet Union has in mind on how and in what order bomber planes should be destroyed.

Significantly, the bomber banfire was not directly mentioned in an agreement on the conference agenda reached between Foster and Zorin and announced earlier today. This indicated the United States and the Soviet Union may be on the verge of genuine bilateral negotiations on the banfire and therefore did not wish the matter to be raised in the unwieldy 17-nation group at this time.

The agenda agreement reached by Foster and Zorin did not remove or reduce fundamental deadlocks on the items mentioned for discussion. But it was the first formal agreement on an agenda reached in the two-year conference and should help brighten the atmosphere of the talks.

The U.S. said today it is prepared to accept a complete verified "cut-off" in the production of fissionable materials for use in nuclear weapons.

One politician no sooner wraps himself in the flag than his opponent raps him too.

SUB-PAR ROUND

Palmer Leads
U.S. Open Golf

WASHINGTON (AP)—Masters king Arnold Palmer hampered the monster course of the Congressional Country Club to its knees with a two-under-par 68 for a two-stroke opening round lead in the U.S. Open golf championship.

The muscled capitalist from Latrobe, Pa., bidding for a professional grand slam, missed a birdie seven-foot putt on the final hole which would have given him a greater margin.

About a third of the 150-man field was still on the course but none appeared in a position to wrest first place from the game's greatest money winner.

FIGHTING ERUPTS
AGAIN ON CYPRUS

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—Heavy fighting broke out again today between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots in the northeastern part of this embattled Mediterranean island, the United Nations Command said.

A UN spokesman said a church and a school in the Greek-Cypriot village of Moshphieri were set afire by mortar shells.

Automatic weapons, mortars and grenades were used in the fighting in the area which has been the scene of sharp clashes since last Monday.

There were no reports available on casualties in the renewed fighting, which came on the day when the UN Security Council in New York was debating a plan to extend for three months the UN peace-keeping force on the island.

At least one Greek-Cypriot was killed and one wounded in the earlier fighting in the area of today's clash. The UN reported Wednesday that one Turkish-Cypriot was killed in shooting near the Turkish-Cypriot village of Yerovasa, west of Limassol. Another unconfirmed UN report said a second Turkish-Cypriot was killed in the southwest Turkish-Cypriot village of Suskiou.

Drunk Charges
Improperly Laid

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today ordered the release of up to 200 drunks from Oakalla Jail. They had been improperly charged by the City of Vancouver.

The action follows a ruling Monday by Supreme Court Chief Justice J. O. Wilson quashing the conviction of Mrs. Winnifred Johnson, jailed by Magistrate Douglas Hume March 9 for 20 days.

The judge said no information of the charge had been given to the court before her plea was taken.

Normal procedure is that details of the charge are read to the court.

Mr. Bonner said an investigation by his department showed the Vancouver city prosecutor's office had been skipping this formality for "some duration."

IMMEDIATE ACTION

As a result he ordered the director of corrections to allow immediate release of Oakalla prisoners jailed on charges involving intoxication in Vancouver.

Mr. Bonner said up to 200 prisoners were to be freed.

Their sentences range from a few days to several months.

"In the circumstances these people would be entitled to be released if they made some application," he said.

"It could probably be demonstrated they were illegally detained."

Mr. Bonner said he was waiving the necessity for any appeal to the courts, although any resulting civil claims would be up to the individuals involved.

He said the Vancouver Prosecutor's Office had agreed with his decision and had corrected its procedure for charging drunks.

Parley Opens
On Malaysia

TOKYO (UPI)—The long-awaited foreign ministers' meeting on Malaysia opened in Tokyo today to work out an agenda for a summit conference among the heads of Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines.

A short time earlier, about 50 persons, including a group of rabbis, were arrested during the meeting.

Dead Husband Inside
Self-Serve Elevator

NEW YORK (AP)—Only minutes after Mrs. Selma Simpson saw her husband precede her into her apartment building, the self-service elevator returned to the lobby with his slain body.

The victim of the macabre murder Wednesday night was Leonard Simpson, 63, a lawyer.

He was slain by a single bullet that passed through his heart, Dr. William J. Brady, assistant medical examiner, reported after conducting an autopsy.

Police earlier had expressed belief he was stabbed, possibly with an ice pick.

Police put out an alarm for a man Mrs. Simpson and others saw leaving the building.

Police said the victim's wallet was empty of bills, although Simpson's younger son, Victor, 23, told police his father usually carried about $50 in bills.

As the elevator doors opened, disclosing his body, face down, Mrs. Simpson screamed and said: "Oh my God. Wait a minute. It looks like my husband."

Just before the elevator doors opened, Mrs. Simpson and two men who also were waiting for the elevator noticed a tall, gaunt Negro with a moustache, who came down the stairs, waved to them in a friendly way and left the building.

Vancouver Island Revisited

NANAIMO—The handsome black Tokyo-based freighter Ritsuyo Maru has ended her three-week drowse at anchor off this rich, busy and at the moment slightly nervous city. At 5 p.m. Tuesday, Captain T. Nishikawa pointed his 5,234-tonner for Vancouver, where she will top off a partial loading of Harmac pulp with general cargo.

Alberni was to have been her next port of call. But a ship can afford to lie idle in harbor only so long, and with Harmac's west coast sister mill strikebound, there seemed no point in further waiting. Here in our island's bustling hub, one man with a good job and money in the bank has cancelled his order for a $3,000 boat-motor-trailer combination. He isn't precisely anticipating lean days but better, maybe, to soft-pedal the spending until the Alberni strike is over.

Assertively independent though the island centres are, they are all to greater or less degree influenced in their economic health by the state of the forest industry. But Alberni and Nanaimo bleed a drop or two.

So the impression we get, talking to this man and that on bustling Front Street or down along the waterfront, is that for a while at least, Nanaimo's free spending may be tempered by a touch of caution.

But only by a touch. Across the water, Macmillan Bloedel and Powell River's giant Harmac mill is pouring its vapor-columns into a grey sky, and a quarter-mile away, a new high-rise is mounting toward its eventual 16 storeys. North, south and west, the subdivisions continue to gulp land which was empty when I was a kid in these parts.

Nanaimo is drastically altered from these days when coal, not lumber, was king, and the black-face miners came off shift to keep British Columbia's largest concentration of beer parlors booming.

There are still beer parlors aplenty, and the grim old HBC bastion still frowns above its cannons at the Indian race-craw which is paddling its lean dugout along the Protection Island Lee. But cocktail lounges have been added, and they're planning a boat basin to shelter a portion of Nanaimo's swarming work and pleasure craft, and an inlet is to be filled so that the seam-busting business section will have more room.

A good many fishermen winter here. An increasing number of convention planners turn their eyes this way.

The pace is brisk. Below me as I write this, a fat CPR ferry has landed one set of passengers, taken on another, and cleared for the mainland. A trim seaplane has set down from a charter flight, and another is readying for takeoff.

Except for the minor uneasiness, that occasional glance over the shoulder in the directions of the Alberni, Nanaimo appears to be doing very well indeed.

Among its 28,000 residents who form part of an impressive trading area population of 110,000 are those who wouldn't agree.

Coal will come back some day, say those who have never learned to trust a prosperity based so heavily on forest wealth. There's as much coal under the ground as ever came out; and a good thing for Nanaimo. Coal, they insist, was steadier.

Away from the hustling downtown, Nanaimo has its share of families on relief, and its unemployed young men.

As everywhere in Canada, a flag argument is easy to come by. I tried to promote one with Harbor Master John Dunham in his office under the shadow of the Bastion.

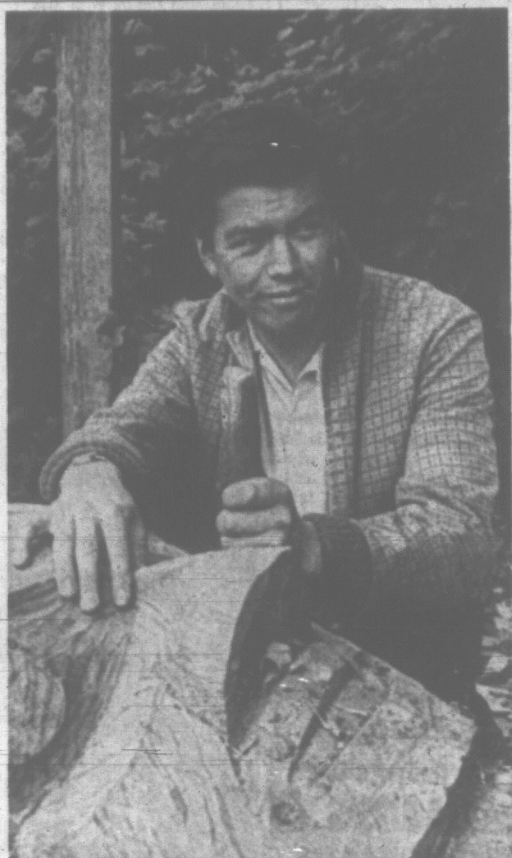

"Here," he said, with a nod toward the 30-foot Harbor Commission patrol launch, "we fly the Blue Ensign."

The launch works 10 hours a day, six days a week, in summer, and an eight-hour day in winter. During 1963, 299 deep-sea ships loaded pulp at Harmac's twin berths, and lumber and other cargo at the Assembly Wharf which juts from the Nanaimo shoreline.

In lumber alone, the freighters take away from seven to eight hundred thousand board feet of Island timber each trip.

While John Dunham gave me the picture, the Comet, Liberia-registered and manned by a Greek crew, was paying her second visit in less than a month. This call, the tough old Second World War Liberty is loading a million and a quarter feet for U.K. market. Among the longshoremen swarming over her were two gangs dispatched by their union local from Alberni.

Ritsuyo, the Japanese carrier that cleared from Nanaimo Tuesday, is swinging Vancouver cargo aboard with her goalpost booms today, and those Alberni gangs aren't currently in much demand at home.

Indian Carvers Working On Totem Poles for Uvic

Two Tsimshian totem poles now being fashioned by Indian carvers at Thunderbird Park will be presented to the University of Victoria some time, this fall.

They will stand on the campus but the actual site has not yet been chosen.

First of the poles, now almost completed, is a 55-foot copy of the Kitwano totem which once stood at Kitwano on the Skeena River. The second, standing 50 feet high, will be a copy of the Nass totem from the Nass River.

Tony Hunt, 21-year-old grandson of the late Chief Mungo Martin, is assisting his father, Henry Hunt, in carving the totems. Hailed as a carver in the family tradition, Tony will give an exhibition of his work in the T. Eaton Company store here July 6-11.

Saanich Liquor Store Site Picked

Announcement of the location of a new liquor store in Saanich should be made shortly, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

Negotiations are under way to acquire a site, he said.

"I think the people of Saanich will be well pleased with the next short while."

He declined to tell the location.

However, it is understood the Liquor Control Board has run into a zoning problem, which indicates the site is in the McKenzie Avenue area.

A Saanich official said if the store were in an existing shopping centre the LCB would have to get council's approval, but there would be no need for rezoning.

If the store were anywhere else, it would have to be rezoned, and this would involve public hearings.

The LCB earlier was investigating both the McKenzie Avenue area and Royal Oak shopping centre.

POLICE END EXPERIMENTAL FLAG FLIGHT

A flag that was to wave from the legislative flag pole is instead draped on the legislative janitor's wall.

City police were called to the legislative buildings about 1:40 a.m. today when the security officer, Robert Keefe, heard a disturbance outside.

Two youths ran when police approached, but a third stayed and said the trio had made a maple-leaf flag and had wanted to try it on the legislative flag-staff.

Police cautioned the youth and sent him on his way.

At dawn, ground's employees at the buildings found a baby blanket on the lawn.

The four-by-four-foot blanket had been painted with three maple leaves and two solid blue bars.

There were no holes in it, or any sign of a way to attach it to a flag halyard.

Open-Pit Digging To Start Shortly At Island Mine

Open-pit mining and stockpiling of ore at Mount Washington Copper Company's property near Courtenay is expected to get under way shortly, company officials said in Vancouver today.

Stripping of overburden has already begun.

The Mt. Washington group is aiming at September production for a 100-ton mill which is to be erected on the property as rapidly as possible.

C. W. S. Tremaine, general manager of Mt. Washington Milling Co. Ltd., which will operate the mill for Mt. Washington Copper and Cumberland Mining Company Ltd., said that work on the mill site is all but complete.

New Deal Must Come For Bus Franchises

Girl Denies Cheque Count At Sidney

An attractive, well-spoken young woman with hair braided at the back and bangs in front took the witness stand in B.C. Assize Court Wednesday afternoon and denied cashing a forged cheque for $138 in the Toronto-Dominion bank at Sidney last July 26.

"I have never been in that bank," said 21-year-old Gunda May Meldrajs of 1464 Begbie.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked her defence counsel, F. Michael P. Warren.

"Not guilty," she replied. Miss Meldrajs said she couldn't remember where she was the day the cheque was cashed. She said she was born in Latvia and came to Canada at the age of five or six. She had since lived in Canada and the United States and had resided in Victoria with her mother for about 18 months.

COULD NOT REMEMBER

She worked for Arnold's Bakery last summer but could not remember if she was employed there on July 26—the day the cheque was cashed.

She went to the National Employment Office on July 30 and worked for Island Farm Dairies for a short while before going into St. Joseph's Hospital for five or six days.

Miss Meldrajs said she was working for Arnold's Bakery at the time of her arrest November 21.

"Have you ever worn your hair in such a manner that it is off your forehead completely?" asked Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie, QC.

"No, I have worn it this way since I was 16," Miss Meldrajs replied.

TAKING COURSE

She said she was taking a secretarial course in Victoria.

"I believe you are doing very well," said Mr. McKenzie.

"Yes, I am," Miss Meldrajs answered.

Further questioned, she said her father was a doctor from Latvia who is now employed in Illinois.

Mr. McKenzie asked where she bought her clothes in Victoria. Miss Meldrajs mentioned two or three stores and Mr. McKenzie asked if she would object to having her wardrobe checked by an investigator.

"No, I wouldn't object," she replied. "I haven't got many clothes."

Referendum Vote Light

Despite a fast start, voting on Victoria's $3,877,000 capital budget referendum appeared headed for a light turnout today.

Indications pointed to a turnout of about 4,000 people, barring a late rush, city returning officer Frank Hunter said this morning.

This would be less than 25 per cent of the total eligible to vote.

Polls are open until 8 p.m. at the Victoria Ballroom, northwest corner of Pandora and Government Street.

Victoria office employees' union delegate Al Bayliss said office workers now have sunk below the level of unskilled laborers. (See story Page 33.)

Service Could End City Warned

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady today said that bus service here will end automatically when the current franchises run out in 1967 unless some arrangement to continue them is made.

He agreed with an opinion by Vancouver city solicitor Russell Baker, who warned his council that if the franchises are not renewed or a new arrangement provided, B.C. Hydro could simply stop running its buses.

"That's quite correct," commented Mr. O'Grady in a telephone interview from Harrison Hot Springs where he is attending a law society convention.

"When the franchises expire the government's obligation ceases and the municipalities never have had any obligation in a legal sense to keep the transit buses running."

POWER TO FORCE

Before the government took over the privately-owned B.C. Electric, the Public Utilities Commission had the power to force continuation of the transit system as a public necessity.

But the government-owned B.C. Hydro which succeeded the BCE has been taken out of the PUC's control. So there is no tribunal to compel the government to keep the buses running beyond the franchise expiry.

Mr. O'Grady was surprised to learn that a month ago the cabinet passed an order-in-council rescinding a 1948 decree that the PUC must consider the overall financial position of BCE when hearing tariff change applications.

"That's very foxy of them, isn't it," he commented.

INTENT IMPORTANT

"But I doubt it alters the position of the contracts (the BCE municipal franchise agreements) because what's important is the intent of the parties when they made the agreement."

Mr. O'Grady maintains the franchises were based on the new-rescinded 1948 order-in-council because they obviously contemplated that overall profits of the electricity and gas branches of BCE would absorb transit losses.

A new order-in-council permits the PUC to hear the present application of B.C. Hydro for almost doubling its bus fares but prevents it from looking at electricity and gas profits.

BUSINESS CONCERNED

Meanwhile, there were signs that the business community as well as municipal councils and bus passengers were agitated by the proposed increase.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce's public affairs group scheduled a meeting for Tuesday, to which transit officials were invited, to investigate the proposal and make recommendations to the chamber's directors.

Bylaw Clears Way to Buy Road Link

An expropriation bylaw was to be introduced today to lay the groundwork for negotiations by the Victoria council to purchase right of way for extending Finlayson Avenue.

A special city council meeting was to give three readings to the bylaw aimed at acquiring an 80-foot strip through the centre of a 6.3-acre field recently purchased by Chevrolet-Oldsmobile dealer Newell Morrison.

The property runs from Douglas Street through to Burnside opposite the present Deans of Finlayson at Douglas.

Mr. Morrison plans to relocate his car agency in new buildings to be erected on the property later this year.

Passage of an expropriation bylaw is council's usual first step before negotiating large purchases because it clearly sets out the city's intentions and enables it to take control of the land regardless of disputes over price.

Expropriation is seldom carried out but if there is no voluntary agreement the price is arbitrated.

Also to be considered at the afternoon meeting were proposals for: extending residential zoning into the light industrial area of James Bay; and construction of a 25-storey apartment block on Blanshard Street opposite the former B.C. Electric building.

VICTORIA BARRISTER Donald J. Lawson became head of the B.C. section, Canadian Bar Association, today when he was elected vice-president at the annual meeting in Harrison Hot Springs. Born and raised in Victoria, Mr. Lawson graduated in law at Osgoode Hall, University of Toronto, and served in the RCNVR from 1941 to 1945. He has been a partner in the Victoria law firm of Crease and Co. since 1946 and is campaign chairman for this year's United Appeal fund. He is married with three children and lives at 2595 Lansdowne.

Rock Blasted For 9-Floor High Rise

Rock blasting for another high-rise apartment building near the Empress Hotel is underway. Peter Hartnell, operator of the Thunderbird Motel, today said the new building would be nine stories high and would include two floors of car parking as well as 93 suites.

Site is a sloping property with frontage on both Douglas Street and Blanshard near their junction at the northwest corner of Beacon Hill Park.

(Excavation for another high-rise, a 16-storey apartment-hotel block, is underway at Douglas and Humboldt on lower ground and the two buildings, when completed, will straddle the Empress' laundry and Crystal Garden.)

"Cost of the project is $1,000,000," said Mr. Hartnell. "We plan to open the building June 1, 1965. We may add a rooftop restaurant but we haven't decided that yet."

Contractor for the project is Patterson Construction.

Dr. J. G. Patterson and Mr. Hartnell are principals of Carmel Holdings Ltd., the development company.

The building will be named the Queen Victoria.

Architects are Peterson and Lester.

Ask The Times

Q—What is the difference between responsible and representative government as related to Canadian history? M.K.

A—Representative government, granted first to Nova Scotia in 1788, created an elected assembly to advise the governor and his appointed executive council.

The executive was not chosen by the assembly, nor were they responsible to it for their policies.

Responsible government began in 1848 when a newly-elected Nova Scotia assembly passed a non-confidence vote against the executive. The executive council resigned two days later and Premier J. B. Uniacke was asked to form a government satisfactory to the assembly.

Later adopted in other provinces and on the federal level, responsible government depends entirely on tradition. When the House of Commons or a provincial legislature passes a non-confidence motion against a government, the executive council (cabinet) is expected to resign to allow someone else to form a government or to hold an election.

TOPICS of the DAY

An 11-month-old child pulled down a television set on herself this morning, but escaped unharmed.

City police took Kristine Hunter, 140 Simcoe, to Saint Joseph's Hospital for a check-up.

The television set was a portable model on a stand, and the child apparently pulled the whole thing down while playing.

Arnold White blew his horn at the Salvation Army instead of with them, and today paid the price of his sins.

White, who lives at 1206 Fairfield, was fined $20 in city police court for unnecessary use of his car horn.

Court was told White drove alongside a Salvation Army gathering on Douglas Street, and blew his horn five times.

He said he did it just for a joke. "Not very funny," commented the magistrate.

A resolution commending the B.C. and federal governments on their negotiations to restore 110-year-old Craigflower Manor as a historic site was passed at a meeting of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society Tuesday night.

Letters of thanks are being sent to Premier Bennett and federal Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing.

"We are particularly interested in this project because of the friendly association between neighboring Indians and the farm since its early days," said Esther F. Tervo, corresponding secretary of the Indian Arts Society.

Negotiations were opened last week with a telegram from Mr. Laing to B.C. deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace offering to share costs equally.

Bill Scott, Victoria's light-house philosopher whose court appearances have been many, confessed today he's getting tired of it.

He pleaded not guilty in city police court to going through a red light.

"Over the years, I've spent $3,000 in fines to prove some of our police are wrong, and I'm getting weary of it," he told Magistrate William Oster.

Case will be tried July 2.

There will be no letter carrier delivery or wicket service at Victoria Post Office on the July 1 Dominion Day holiday.

Street letter box collections will be made in the evening only and holiday service will be in effect for special delivery letters, mail receipts and dispatches.

The 6th Arbutus (St. Paul's) Cub and Scout group will hold its annual garden party in Bulden Park Saturday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. There will be stalls and games for young and old.

SHRINE CIRCUS PLAYING HERE

Arena Turned Into 'Big Top'

Memorial Arena began buzzing with roustabouts early this morning as the Shrine Circus moved into the Memorial Arena.

Trapezes were hung from rapidly-erected rigging poles to await testing by the artists.

The highwire was strung above the concrete floor for the Triska Troupe, but no safety net was put below.

On the arena floor green rubber matting was laid down and three large rings arranged in place.

It will be in these rings that most of the 30 acts will take place.

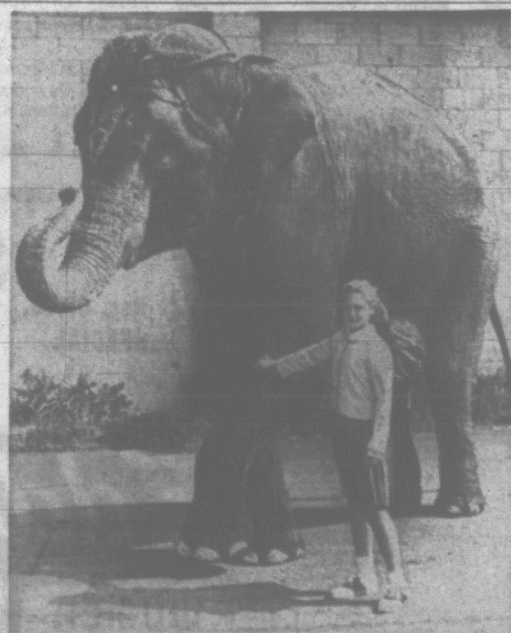

FILLED WITH COLOR
Trained poodles, trick bicycle acrobats, chimpanzees and clowns will fill the arena floor with color.

All three rings are needed for one act—the palomino dancing horses of Trevor Bale.

The entire circus travels in trailers, including approximately 15 tons of elephants.

One-act-Kellers Jungle Killers—suffered engine trouble on the 1,600-mile trip up here from San Diego and was not expected to appear at the first show this afternoon.

This afternoon's matinee was scheduled for 4 o'clock, with an 8 o'clock performance this evening. The 4 and 8 o'clock shows will be repeated Friday.
